U.S. birthday party marked by pomp, parade

More news of the nation's Bicentennial celebration is on Page 7, Section 3.

John Adams would have been proud of Arlington Heights this weekend as thousands of the village's residents remained here to celebrate America's Bicentennial. And they did it in a fashion that would have gained approval from Adams or any of his compatriots from the American Revolution.

"It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations. . .," Adams said in a letter to his wife, Abigail, 200 years ago to describe how future Americans should commemorate what he called "the most memorable epoch in the history of America."

The festival organized by the Arlington Heights Bicentennial Commission did exactly that.

THE BICENTENNIAL weekend in Arlington Heights was kicked off Friday night at Recreation Park where among the many carnival rides there was a torchlight parade, a ride by Paul Revere, square dancing and other ceremonies.

The excitement of the celebration, which has been planned for more than a year, reached a crescendo Saturday morning at the "Spirit of '76" parade through downtown Arlington Heights.

The parade was held under sunny skies that were blemished only by the steady flight of runaway balloons filled with helium.

Thousands of residents lined the 13-block parade route that began at the village hall and terminated at Arlington High School. Many of the parade lovers arrived an hour before the 9:30 kickoff to reserve their seats for the 90-minute show organized by American Legion Post 208.

Many of the parade-goers were dressed in red, white and blue and some even came in colonial-style garb. Hundreds waved plastic flags that they bought from vendors for $1.

FOLLOWING THE six fire department vehicles that led the parade were bands, flag corps, Girl and Boy Scouts, floats, church groups, homeowners groups and campaigning politicians.

Dignitaries who rode in the parade included: Cook County Sheriff Richard J. Elrod; state legislators Eugenia S. Chapman, Virginia B. Macdonald and Eugene F. Schlickman; and Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

Also present were: Edward F. Brennan, commander of the State of Illinois American Legion; Walter Lukstra, commander of the State of Illinois V.F.W.; and Virginia Sonne, president of the State of Illinois Ladies Auxiliary American Legion.

Grand marshals for the parade were Ernest Ninnemann and Phil Engelking of Arlington Heights, who are veterans of World War I.

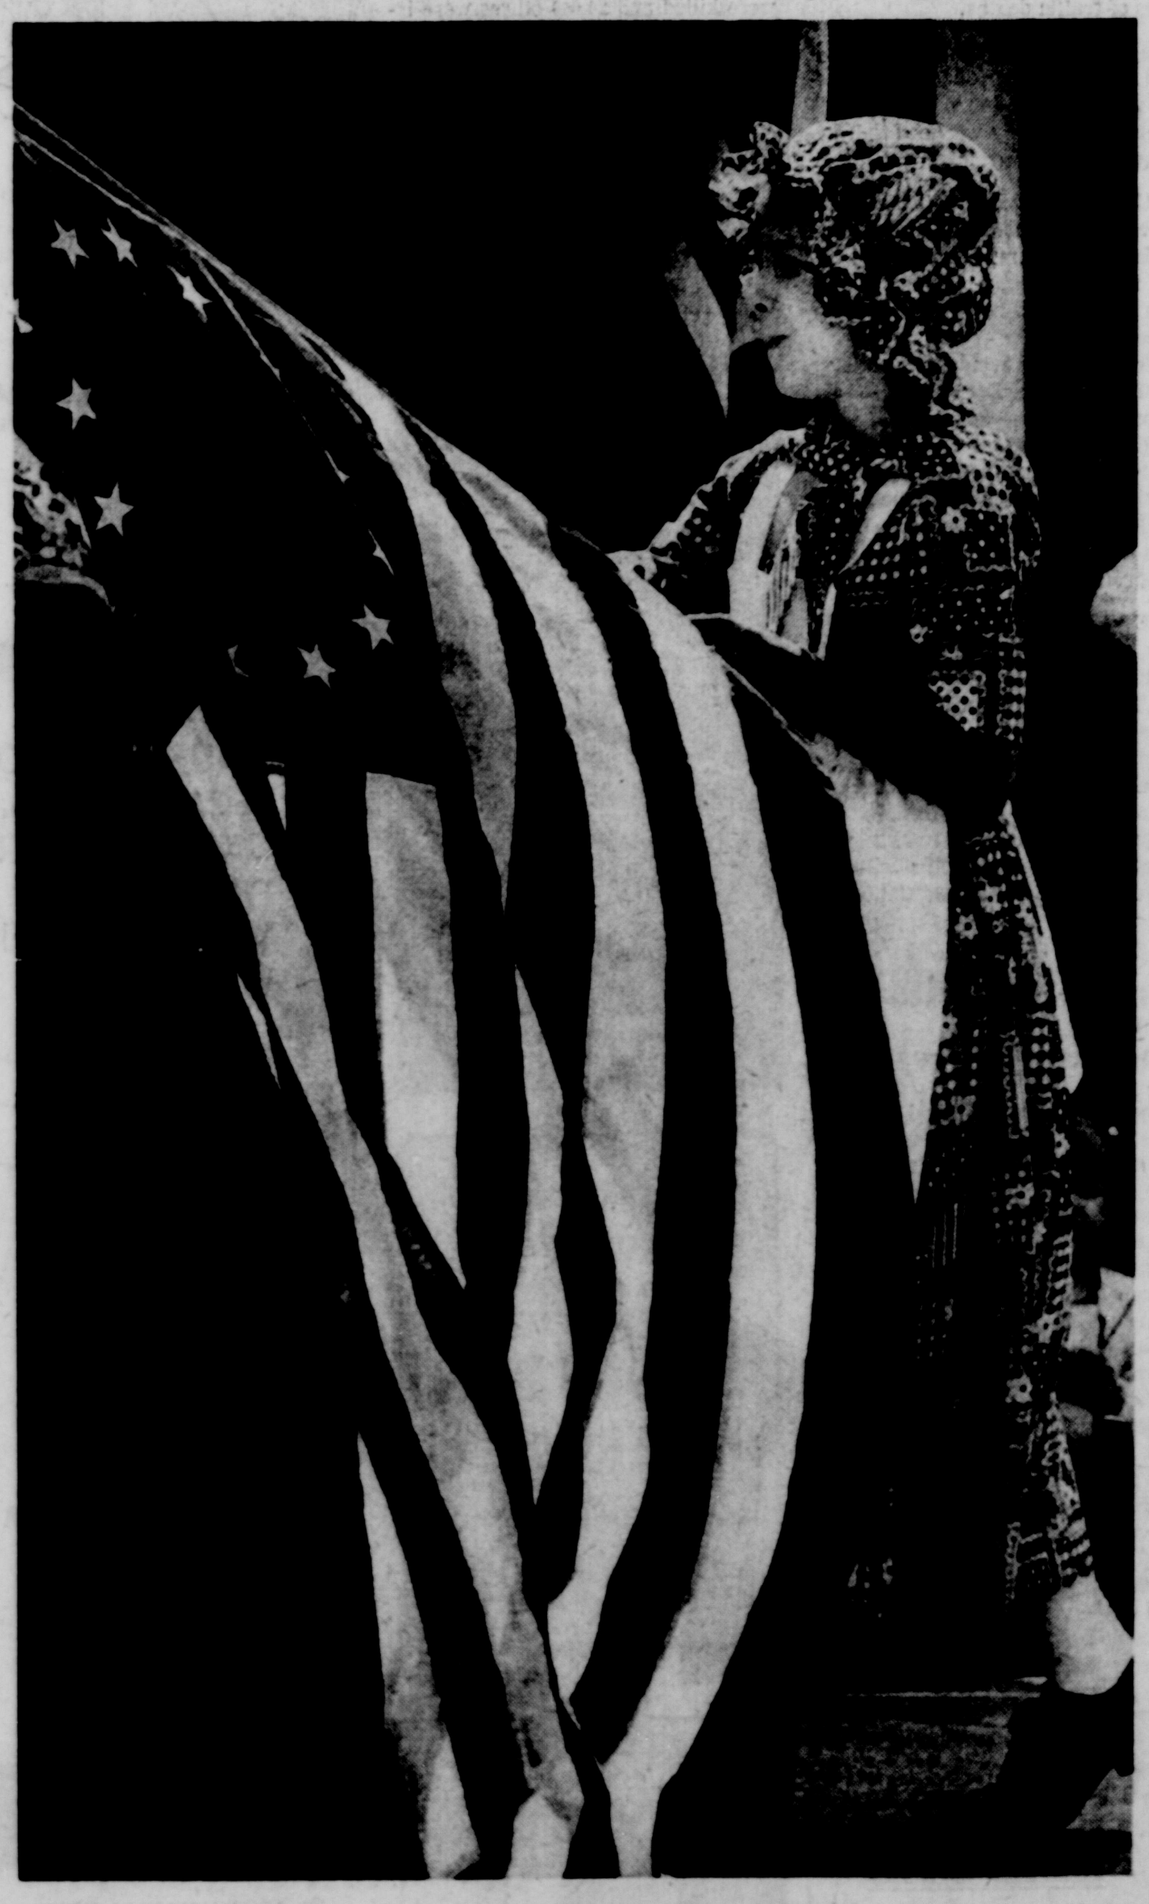

THE BUFFALO GROVE High School Marching Band was named the best high school band in the parade. Other high school bands were from Elk Grove Village, Wheeling and Roll-

What's in a name? Bride now can choose his or hers

Today

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

When the preacher says to Mary Smith and John Jones, "I now pronounce you man and wife," contrary to popular opinion the bride does not automatically become Mrs. John Jones.

Not unless she chooses to, and even then it's not official until she changes her name to her husband's name on such records as her Social Security, driver's license, car registration, credit cards and bank accounts.

The use of the husband's surname by the wife is purely social custom, not law, but the tradition has been so ingrained in this country that it has often carried the force of law.

According to the Center for a Woman's Own Name in Barrington, there is no law, common or statutory in the United States (except in Hawaii) stating that a woman must take her husband's name upon marriage.

THIS FACT WAS recognized as early as the mid-19th century, when Ruth Hale, co-founder of the Lucy Stone League (and mother of sports commentator Heywood Hale Broun), wrote.

"By some curious oversight the law . . . left woman the full free right to her own name, whether married or not. Custom took it from her."

Ruth Hale's colleague, Lucy Stone, was the first American woman to keep her name when she married Henry B. Blackwell in 1855.

"My name is the symbol of my identity and must not be lost," she declared.

As for children, common law does not require that they carry the father's surname, either. In fact, anyone can go by any name he or she wishes as long as there is no intent to defraud. The name one uses relative to the state — i.e., on Social Security, driver's license and other such records — is one's "legal" name.

THEORETICALLY, changing one's "legal" name is also a common law procedure and is doen very simply, as when a woman marries and changes her name to her husband's. It should b equally as simple for her to change it back to her "maiden" name if she chooses — as many women are doing today — but in practice this often causes a hassle.

Terri Tepper, founder of the center for a Woman's Own Name, won a court case several years ago in Illinois clarifying the right of a woman to do that, and similar cases are now on record in other states.

But, as a California woman wrote to the Center, "This (going to court to recover one's "maiden" name) is highly objectionable as a matter of principle to a woman who feels her

Wrecks, mishaps mar Bicentennial

Highway accidents and fireworks mishaps put a sour twist in the Bicentennial holiday for some Northwest suburbanites.

A 49-year-old Palatine motorcyclist suffered serious chest injuries in a head-on crash with an auto at Appleby and Roselle roads, Inverness, at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

John L. Gray, 1012 Raven Ln., was transported to Lutheran Gen- ospital, Park Ridge, for diagnosis of injuries. A hospital spokesman at 6 p.m. Sunday said surgery was likely, though the nature of injuries remained uncertain.

EARLIER IN THE weekend, Mark Wyskup, 15, of 1204 Sarasota, Wheeling, escaped serious injury when a homemade pipe bomb exploded, police said.

Police said five high school youths were assembling a pipe bomb in a home on the 1100 block of Sarasota Drive in Wheeling shortly before 8 p.m. Friday. The youths reportedly had stuffed match heads into a pipe, and were pounding a cap into place when the device exploded.

The injured teen was taken to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, where he was treated for severe cuts on his arm and powder burns to his eyes, and released.

One youth spent part of the Bicentennial Sunday in the Mount Prospect police station after he was arrested for possession of fireworks, police said.

POLICE ARRESTED Steven M. Maly, 20, of 671 N. Maple Ct., Mount Prospect, at 2:30 a.m. Sunday after he and a companion who escaped police allegedly fired off fireworks in a parking lot near Maple Court and Highland Street.

Maly was released on $25 bond and ordered to appear July 28 in the Mount Prospect court.

Three Arlington Heights women suffered minor injuries in a two-car collision 3 p.m. Sunday at Lynnwood Street and Belmont Avenue, Arlington Heights, firefighters reported.

Treated and released for cuts or bruises at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, were Rosemary Lafferty, 16, of 1540 N. Hickory; Colleen Hanson, 19, of 1306 Belmont Ave.; and Teresa O'Hara, 20, of 1539 Ridge Ave.

ANDREW P. LEICHT, 19, of 1210 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, escaped serious injury at 4:30 a.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car on Ill. Rte. 68 just west of Smith Street, Palatine Township, and crashed into a utility pole, police reported.

Leicht was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, where he was treated and released for cuts and bruises. Police ticketed him for improper lane usage.

Dennis A. Bastian, 17, of 1146 N. Hoffman Ave., Park Ridge, also suffered minor injuries when a car he was driving set off a chain-reaction accident at Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 72 at 4:15 p.m. Saturday, police reported.

Police said Bastian's car struck the rear of a Ford truck driven by Ambrosio Trevino, 17, of 8760 N. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, who in turn struck the rear of a car driven by Fred Engel, 41, of 95 Ashland Ave., also of Des Plaines.

BASTIAN WAS treated for cuts and bruises and released at Holy Family Hospital. Police ticketed him for allegedly causing the accident.

Two Northwest suburban drivers faced traffic charges following a two-car crash Friday afternoon at Arlington Heights Road and Park Street, Arlington Heights.

Police charge Thomas J. Vivirito, 19, of 325 Waverly Dr., Arlington Heights, with following too closely. Phillip Rubino, 35, of 705 Marcella Rd., Des Plaines, was charged with driving without a valid drivers license.

Police said Rubino had slowed for an ambulance, at 4:30 p.m. Friday, and Vivirito crashed into the rear of his car. Rubino and his wife, Mary 31, reportedly were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, where they were treated for bruises and released.

Built by Harper students

Air conditioner for Lahti told

by DIANE GRANAT
and
PAMELA BIGFORD

Harper College students installed a $4,000 central air conditioning unit in the Inverness home of Harper Pres. Robert Lahti as part of a college project which cost Lahti only about one-fourth the normal fee for the work.

Lahti is one of dozens of Harper officials and employes who apparently have had work done by college students at their private homes, according to James Norini, assistant professor and coordinator of the air conditioning and refrigeration program at the Palatine college. The only cost is for materials (in Lahti's case about $900) and 15 cents a mile for students traveling to and from the job, Norini said.

Norini said he tries to have his classes "install a central air conditioner once or twice a year" in nearby homes.

NORINI SAID STUDENTS were at Lahti's home learning how to clean out a boiler when they noticed Lahti had an unusual type of heating system that had hot water heat and no forced air.

"I thought it would make a good project for the students to install central air conditioning there because they would have to install an entire duct system," Norini said.

Norini said he asked Lahti if he would be willing to have the students install the air conditioning. He said he told Lahti that the project would cost Lahti about $900 for parts plus 15 cents a mile for the students' transportation to his house. Lahti ended up paying "a couple of hundred dollars" more than that before the project was finished, Norini said.

"Lahti asked me specifically if we were doing this because he was president, but I assured him the prime reason was a learning experience for the boys," Norini said.

NORINI SAID LAHTI "made out" by getting about a $4,000 job done for a quarter of the price, but that he "paid for the rest of it in inconvenience. It took us nine months to do it and we ruined his stairwell."

His students have done work for "dozens and dozens" of people, Norini said, primarily faculty and administrators.

"We used to announce it, but now the word is out — anybody that wants anything done, if their house is in the right place, if it's close enough, we'll send the students there." People pay only for parts and students transportation, he said.

Harper Board Pres. Shirley Munson told The Herald she received a copy of a memo to faculty and administrators saying that Harper students would like to do air conditioning work in homes "because they have to have a certain number of hours" of practical experience.

Norini said he would like to work out a system where his students are hired by air conditioning firms to get on-the-job experience, but until that time, they will continue to get practical experience by asking people to volunteer their homes.

LAHTI IS ON vacation and has been unavailable for comment on the air conditioning system.

Lahti told The Herald last week, however, to say he would respond "at a later date" to charges reported in The Herald that he, as well as several board members, have requested the use of Harper Public Safety Dept. cars for personal business.

Harper Board Pres. Shirley Munson said she has sent a memo to Lahti asking him to give the board an explanation of the charges. Mrs. Munson said she expects this will be done before the next board meeting, scheduled for July 22. At that meeting "We will probably have something on the agenda about transportation policies, and we will discuss them," she said.

Lahti apparently asked public safety department employes to drive his son home from a soccer game, drive other administrators and himself to a restaurant and wait until they were finished eating, and to deliver mail to his home in Inverness, according to former and present public safety employes.

OTHER REPORTED INSTANCES include driving Lahti to a meeting at the Bank of Elk Grove, where he is a member of the board of directors: driving Lahti and his son to O'Hare Airport for a vacation and sending department workers to Woodfield Shopping Center to help Lahti's wife start her stalled car.

Security cars also were used to pick up board members at the train station and bring them to Harper, drive board members home from meetings, and take them to restaurants before negotiating sessions, several employes and board members said.

Public safety employes said when they were asked to go on these errands sometimes only one officer was left on campus and that officer often was left with a car they described as a "death trap."

The employes said they drove an "unsafe" 1971 Ford automobile for many months before an order was placed for a new car in March. The car was not replaced until last week when a 1976 Dodge Dart was delivered, public safety officials said.

THE COLLEGE'S PUBLIC safety department maintains two squad cars, a 1973 Chevrolet and the new Dodge, and a three-wheeled vehicle. The vehicles are intended for campus security.

A former public safety employe said that one time when Lahti was picked up at the airport, it was decided to send the Ford, which was apparently leaking carbon monoxide fumes, to show its condition to Lahti.

"We were choking, but instead of saying 'You need a new car,' Lahti said, 'Never pick me up in this squad car again,'" the former employe said.

The safety department in the past has received Lahti's old car. Lahti receives an automobile from the college as part of his contract, which entitles him to a $44,000 annual salary. The college covers the car's operating costs.

Gordon Wallace, supervisor of public safety, said the 1973 Chevrolet which the department now operates used to belong to Lahti.

Holiday death count already 266

Americans flocked in cars to festivities commemorating the nation's 200th birthday Sunday, triggering scores of traffic deaths.

The National Safety Council projected that between 530 and 630 persons would die on the nation's roads during the three-day weekend that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

A United Press International count showed 244 persons had died in traffic accidents by 4 p.m. Sunday, still before millions began taking to the roads for the trek home from holiday journeys.

A breakdown of accidental deaths: Traffic — 244; Drownings — 21; Planes — 1; total — 266.

In one of the worst accidents Sunday, two teenagers died when the car in which they were riding, chased by a police, ran off the road, slammed into a tree and burst into flames west of Hancock, Mich.

THE VICTIMS of the early morning crash were identified as Bonnie Haataja, 15, Pelkie, Mich., and Alan Marcotte, 13, Houghton, Mich.

Few multi fatal accidents were reported Sunday, after a rash of tragic accidents Friday night when travelers set out on their weekend trips.

Texas, hit by torrential rains, was the leader in traffic deaths with 28, followed by Ohio with 18, California with 15, and New York and Florida with 14 each.

The Safety Council said 508 persons were killed and 24,000 others were injured in traffic accidents last year, but projected an increase based on increased travel and indications that motorists are paying less heed to the nationwide 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

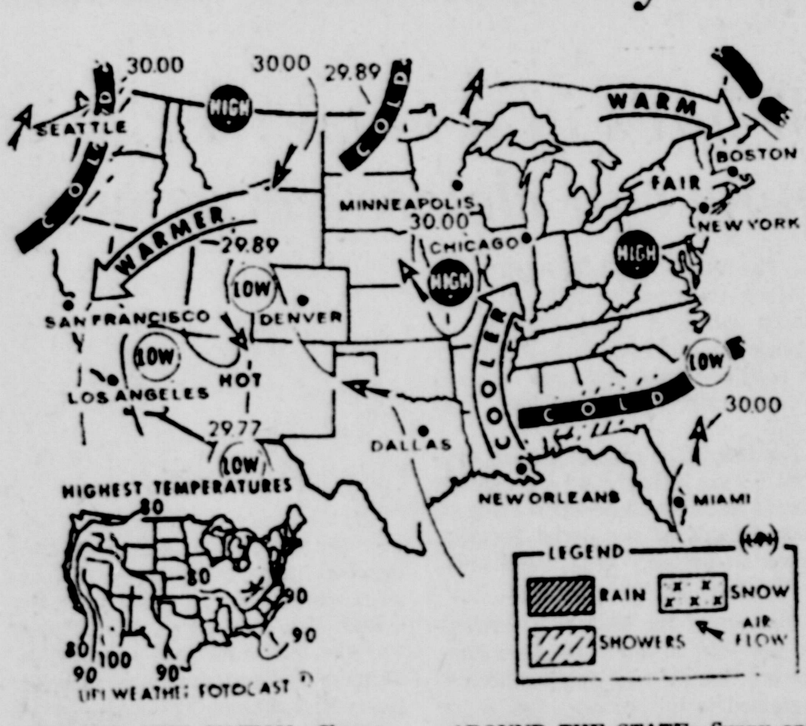

Harper club cited at model UN session

Members of the political science club at Harper College were recognized as an "outstanding delegation" at the National Model United Nations in New York City. Students from more than 130 American colleges and universities acted as delegates to the UN during the five-day simulation.

Representing the Asian country of Afghanistan were Audley Shaw, Streamwood; John Maxey, Elk Grove Village; Bruce Donnelly, Barrington; and Larry Johnson and Paul Scott of Mount Prospect.

The Harper delegation was one of 25 cited for distinguished performance at the conference. Delegations were judged on their knowledge of the UN, their debating skills and accurate portrayal of the views of the country they represented.

Lahti apparently asked public safety department employes to drive his son home from a soccer game, drive other administrators and himself to a restaurant and wait until they were finished eating, and to deliver mail to his home in Inverness, according to former and present public safety employes.

OTHER REPORTED INSTANCES include driving Lahti to a meeting at the Bank of Elk Grove, where he is a member of the board of directors: driving Lahti and his son to O'Hare Airport for a vacation and sending department workers to Woodfield Shopping Center to help Lahti's wife start her stalled car.

Security cars also were used to pick up board members at the train station and bring them to Harper, drive board members home from meetings, and take them to restaurants before negotiating sessions, several employes and board members said.

Public safety employes said when they were asked to go on these errands sometimes only one officer was left on campus and that officer often was left with a car they described as a "death trap."

The employes said they drove an "unsafe" 1971 Ford automobile for many months before an order was placed for a new car in March. The car was not replaced until last week when a 1976 Dodge Dart was delivered, public safety officials said.

THE COLLEGE'S PUBLIC safety department maintains two squad cars, a 1973 Chevrolet and the new Dodge, and a three-wheeled vehicle. The vehicles are intended for campus security.

A former public safety employe said that one time when Lahti was picked up at the airport, it was decided to send the Ford, which was apparently leaking carbon monoxide fumes, to show its condition to Lahti.

"We were choking, but instead of saying 'You need a new car,' Lahti said, 'Never pick me up in this squad car again,'" the former employe said.

The safety department in the past has received Lahti's old car. Lahti receives an automobile from the college as part of his contract, which entitles him to a $44,000 annual salary. The college covers the car's operating costs.

Gordon Wallace, supervisor of public safety, said the 1973 Chevrolet which the department now operates used to belong to Lahti.

Holiday death count already 266

Americans flocked in cars to festivities commemorating the nation's 200th birthday Sunday, triggering scores of traffic deaths.

The National Safety Council projected that between 530 and 630 persons would die on the nation's roads during the three-day weekend that began at 6 p.m. Friday.

A United Press International count showed 244 persons had died in traffic accidents by 4 p.m. Sunday, still before millions began taking to the roads for the trek home from holiday journeys.

A breakdown of accidental deaths: Traffic — 244; Drownings — 21; Planes — 1; total — 266.

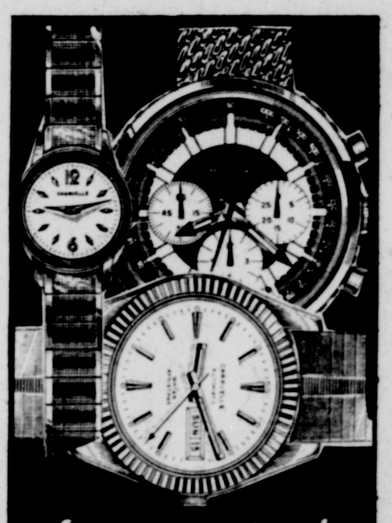

In one of the worst accidents Sunday, two teenagers died when the car in which they were riding, chased by a police, ran off the road, slammed into a tree and burst into flames west of Hancock, Mich.

THE VICTIMS of the early morning crash were identified as Bonnie Haataja, 15, Pelkie, Mich., and Alan Marcotte, 13, Houghton, Mich.

Few multi fatal accidents were reported Sunday, after a rash of tragic accidents Friday night when travelers set out on their weekend trips.

Texas, hit by torrential rains, was the leader in traffic deaths with 28, followed by Ohio with 18, California with 15, and New York and Florida with 14 each.

The Safety Council said 508 persons were killed and 24,000 others were injured in traffic accidents last year, but projected an increase based on increased travel and indications that motorists are paying less heed to the nationwide 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

Harper club cited at model UN session

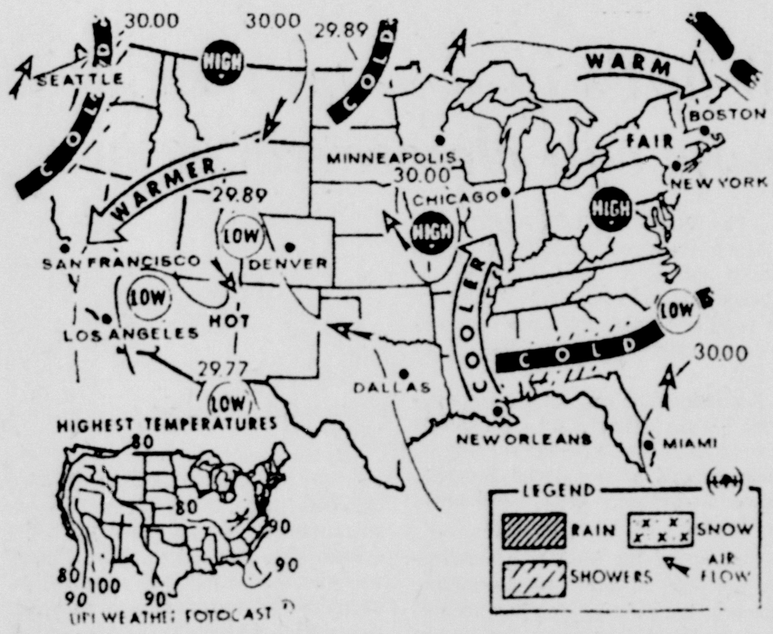

Members of the political science club at Harper College were recognized as an "outstanding delegation" at the National Model United Nations in New York City. Students from more than 130 American colleges and universities acted as delegates to the UN during the five-day simulation.

Representing the Asian country of Afghanistan were Audley Shaw, Streamwood; John Maxey, Elk Grove Village; Bruce Donnelly, Barrington; and Larry Johnson and Paul Scott of Mount Prospect.

The Harper delegation was one of 25 cited for distinguished performance at the conference. Delegations were judged on their knowledge of the UN, their debating skills and accurate portrayal of the views of the country they represented.

Israel's midnight strike draws support, criticism

(From Herald News Services)

Israel's 36-minute midnight strike Sunday into Uganda to rescue 106 hostages held by pro-Palestinian hijackers of an Air France passenger plane has sparked reactions ranging from "great satisfaction" to "utter shock" from world leaders.

President Ford sent a letter to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin Sunday expressing the "great satisfaction" of the American people over the commando raid.

Ford said the Israeli rescue thwarted "a senseless act of terrorism."

The White House made public the one-paragraph letter in Philadelphia after Ford delivered a Bicentennial address at Independence Hall.

The official Soviet news agency Tass called the raid the Jewish state's "latest act of piracy."

Tass said the raid was carried out "under the pretext of rescuing a group of passengers of the hijacked airbus belonging to Air France."

"The latest act of piracy by the Israeli military perpetrated at Entebbe Airport came under strong condemnation at the assembly of member countries of the Organization of African Unity" in Port Louis, Mauritius, Tass said.

In Bonn West Germany, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt cabled Rabin Sunday to express West Germany's satisfaction and relief at the freeing of the hostages in Uganda.

"July 4, 1976 will be an important date in the confrontation with terrorism in the world," former Chancellor Willy Brandt told a ruling Social Democratic party rally.

The pro-Palestinian hijackers had demanded the release of 53 prisoners held in West Germany, Israel, Kenya, France and Switzerland and government spokesman Klaus Boelling said West Germany thanked the other nations involved for their cooperation.

"The behaviour of the authorities in Uganda still needs clarification," Boelling said.

Boelling said his government had never considered releasing the six guerrillas, alleged members of the Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang, in West German jails.

Boelling said West Germany knew nothing of Israel's plan to free the hostages until after the raid was completed.

Arab and African leaders in Port Louis, Mauritius bore out the Soviet Union report and expressed "utter shock" at the raid.

An Algerian spokesman, informed of the raid, said: "Impossible. It's just impossible."

Foreign Minister Lt. Col. Juma Oris of Uganda told other delegates to the Organization of African Unity that more than 100 Ugandan soldiers were killed, more than a score of civilian and warplanes destroyed and an old airport terminal in the attack.

Uganda President Idi Amin sent an urgent message to the OAU summit meeting here asking for its "condemnation of the Zionist invasion." He said he will demand an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss the attack.

"The invasion waw a big surprise to Uganda," Oris told heads of state in reading the message from Amin.

Oris said the raiders destroyed seven sophisiticated Soviet-built Mig21 jet planes, four older Mig17s and a number of civilian aircraft and razed an old airport terminal building.

He accused neighboring Kenya of being the base for the attack but said "in spite of this provocation Uganda will not attack any state."

French Ambassador to Israel Jean Herly said the liberation of hostagges by Israeli troops in Uganda was a moral "victory over brutal force."

"A moral victory was scored this night — a victory over a brutal force," Herly told Radio Luxembourg in Tel Aviv.

He said he hadn't been informed beforehand of the operation, and that he was sure the French government also had not known about it.

Amin places 20,000 on alert

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—President Idi Amin Sunday placed his 20,000-man army on full alert in the aftermath of the successful raid on Entebbe airport by Israeli commandos to rescue more than 100 persons held hostage by pro-Palestinian hijackers of an Air France passenger plane.

He denounced the Israeli attack and also called on the nations of the Third World and Africa to condemn neighboring Kenya for permitting the Israeli planes refueling facilities at the Nairobi airport.

Uganda Foreign minister Lt. Col. Juma Oris told Arab and African delegates to the Organization of African Unity at Port Louis, Mauritius, that 100 Ugandan soldiers were killed by the Israeli raiders.

Amin, who was trained as a parachutist by Israelis but later broke all diplomatic and other relations with the Jewish state, told the Tel Aviv newspaper Ma'ariv in a telephone interview that he was "counting the bodies" of his dead soldiers. Amin said two Israeli soldiers were killed when they tried to enter the presidential lounge at the airport. "Their blood can still be seen," he said.

The Ugandan president said his troops did not fire on the Israeli aircraft during the raid "because we did not want innocent people in them to die."

He admitted a number of Ugandan planes were destroyed but did not say how many. Oris said at least a score, including 11 Soviet-built Mig17s and 21s, were knocked out.

A Ugandan military spokesman in another radio announcement accused Kenya of having had "full knowledge of Israeli plans to invade Uganda." He claimed news agencies had reported that an Israeli military delegation visited Kenya last Thursday to plan the raid.

THE PILOT OF ONE of the Israeli Airforce C-135 planes is carried shoulder high by well-wishers on his return to Israel with hostages held in Uganda as people cheered in the streets of Tel Aviv.

The people of Israel live, rescued hostage rejoices

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The stubble-chinned hostage put his arm around his wife and said it was like fireworks on the Fourth of July when Israeli commandos attacked the hi-jacked stronghold at Uganda's Entebbe airport.

Red-eyed and shaky-kneed, he stood in a circle of relatives, who smiled through their tears.

Bused from Ben Gurion Airport to a nearby air force base, the freed hostages ran across the grassy lawn to meet husbands, wives and children who had waited for hours in hot sun.

As the hostages related their tales of the week-long terror, hundreds of Israelis danced the hora, drank brandy and blew triumphant blasts on the traditional ram's horns around them.

"It was the longest week of my life," said Janet Almog, from Madison, Wis., who was among those held hostage since pro-Palestinian hijackers comandeered an Air France Airbus over Greece June 27.

"We did think we would get out, but not that way," said Mrs. Almog who is now married to an Israeli.

"They (the seven Arab and German hijackers) told us it was all a matter of days, and we had to wait for our government," she said. "And we waited."

George Garfunkel, from Brooklyn, N.Y., who wears the skullcap that identifies Orthodox Jews, said he felt ignored by the U.S. government.

"They finally, finally, came after a week," he said. "Our government did not care about us, so finally the Israeli government did care."

When the Israelis burst in firing their machine guns, "we ran for cover and about 10 minutes later everything was over and we were able to get out to safety," Garfunkel said.

The hostages said they were treated relatively well, but the food was monotonous.

"Rice, rice, rice," said Rina Kipper, 36, a Tel Aviv housewife.

She said the Israelis kept up their morale, "because we were all in it together."

The hostages said some of the men thought about turning on their captors with soda bottles, but they decided against the idea.

Their hopes soared on Thursday when Ugandan President Idi Amin told them Israel had agreed to negotiate a possible exchange for jailed terrorists.

"I think its like a miracle from God," said Arno Helf, an Israeli. "We were playing bridge and most of the people were asleep, then we heard shooting.

"We all fell on the ground. After that we heard someone calling in Hebrew get up and go to the plane. Now we are here and we are very happy."

An old man with a thick, gray beard that reached his chest climbed on the shoulders of a burly soldier.

"The people of Israel live," he cried.

Governors urge minimum income plan

A bipartisan task force of governors meeting in Hershey, Pa. proposed Sunday that the federal government establish a standard, nationwide income maintenance system for persons whose income puts them below the poverty line. The proposal, by the National Governors Conference welfare reform task force, came as governors from across the nation gathered to discuss the role of states in the nation's third century. The minimum income support program, the outgrowth of a two-year study by governors under the leadership of Republican Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, includes a work incentive plan for the unemployed. All registered welfare recipients would be required to cooperate with employment programs and accept suitable work.

July 4 bomb attempt foiled

A July 4 attempt to blow up a state police barracks in Topsfield, Mass. failed Sunday as authorities investigating recent New England bombings arrested a man and seized 46 sticks of dynamite. There have been 11 bombings in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire since April 22. FBI Special Agent Richard Bates said courthouses in Boston, Lowell and Newburyport, Mass., were bombed by devices similar to a pair of tape — wrapped packages of dynamite found in the suspect's automobile Sunday.

Rubber strike talks progress: official

United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito Sunbay reported progress in a marathon negotiating session, but declined to say settlement of the nationwide rubber strike is near. Bommarito would not say specifically which issues had been discussed. However, he commented that the negotiations were down to "the gut issues." Presumably, that would mean a cost of living formula, wages and pensions. The URW struck Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal April 21.

Muskie—Carter's top pick

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Democrat Jimmy Carter said Sunday that Sen. Edmund F. Muskie, D-Maine, is the first of about a half dozen possible vice presidential candidates he will see in the week remaining before the Democratic National Convention.

After a July 4 service at Plains Baptist Church, Carter chatted with newsmen on the lawn of his home, telling them Muskie would fly into the tiny Sumter County Airport around midnight Sunday and confer with him Monday.

Muskie, the party's vice presidential candidate in 1968, was an early favorite in the 1972 presidential campaign, but his bid fizzled in Florida — the same state that boosted Carter to prominence this year with a victory over George Wallace.

Carter said he intended to meet with "at least two more" candidates after Muskie. He said one of the other unnamed running mate candidates will come to Plains and the other will be interviewed in New York.

Carter said Atlanta Attorney Charles Kirbo, former chairman of the Georgia Democratic party, would continue interviewing prospective running mates. He said his list of about 15 prospective nominees has been trimmed to "four, five, six or more."

Carter declined to discuss what Muskie could bring to the ticket, but said, "Sen. Muskie has management experience, he's been a superb governor of his state in Maine, he's shown a remarkable ability, I think, recently, in the Congress in heading up the new Budget Committee, which I think is a very admirable (improvement) over congressional deliberations in the past.

"I had a meeting with him a week or two ago in my visit to Washington and I didn't talk to him about the vice presidency, but Mr. Kirbo has talked to him at length about it and I think that he's demonstrated in the past as vice presidential candidate his acceptance around the nation," said Carter.

"He, as you know, was unsuccessful in 1972 but he has been willing to present himself to the American people."

In announcing the Muskie visit, Carter said there are at least five others he wants to interview now, and Kirbo might bring him more names. He said he has already contacted three, including Muskie, to set up meetings.

Carter said there is no significance in the order in which he meets these people and timing is "primarily to accommodate the obligations of those that I'm interviewing."

"We will be considering not a very tightly confined group," said Carter. "I'm going to keep my options open right on up to the time of the nomination of myself. I don't want to close any doors."

He listed three criteria he is looking for in a runningmate:

"I just am going to search now for compatibility between myself and them and my own judgment about who might be best to govern this country . . . those are the two major things," Carter said.

"And I've always said the third consideration would be some sort of balancing of the ticket."

Italian leaders ponder candidates

ROME, Italy (UPI) — The Christian Democrats and the Communists Sunday pondered their choices for the presidencies of Italy's newly elected Senate and Chamber of Deputies.

Leaders of Italy's six non-fascist parties, including the Communists, met Saturday and agreed a Communist should be president of the chamber and a Christian Democrat should lead the senate.

The actual election of the new presidents was scheduled for Monday afternoon, when the two houses of parliament hold their opening meetings. But politicians said Saturday's agreement was tantamount to election and it remained only for the two parties to name their candidates.

Assigning the chamber presidency to the Communists was the ruling Christian Democrats' first concession to the West's largest Communist party since the June 20-21 national elections in which the Communists gained heavily and the Christian Democrates just held their own.

The Communists won 228 chamber seats to 262 for the Christian Democrats. The Socialists won 57 seats.

Politicians and newspapers said Nilde Jotti, vice-president of the previous chamber, was the leading Communist candidate for the presidency. If chosen, she would be the first woman to head a house of the Italian parliament.

Former Premier Amintore Fanfani, a hardline anti-Communist, was the Christian Democratic frontrunner for the Senate presidency which he held from 1968 to 1973. But the party's liberal factions were pushing former Interior Minister Paolo Emilio Taviani and politicians said the final choice would reflect whether the national election results have made the Christian Democrats more flexible toward accommodation with the left.

Negotiations to form Italy's 39th government in the 33 years since the fall of fascism were expected to begin toward the end of this week.

The Communists won 228 chamber seats to 262 for the Christian Democrats. The Socialists won 57 seats.

Politicians and newspapers said Nilde Jotti, vice-president of the previous chamber, was the leading Communist candidate for the presidency. If chosen, she would be the first woman to head a house of the Italian parliament.

Former Premier Amintore Fanfani, a hardline anti-Communist, was the Christian Democratic frontrunner for the Senate presidency which he held from 1968 to 1973. But the party's liberal factions were pushing former Interior Minister Paolo Emilio Taviani and politicians said the final choice would reflect whether the national election results have made the Christian Democrats more flexible toward accommodation with the left.

Negotiations to form Italy's 39th government in the 33 years since the fall of fascism were expected to begin toward the end of this week.

Rock singer Paul Revere weds

• Paul Revere the rock singer, not the celebrated horseman — was married to Sandra Campbell on the Fourth of July by a minister attired in a sequined version of an Uncle Sam costume. Revere, 39, wh9 formed his band "Paul Revere and the Raiders" 16 years ago, was decked out in dress costume. Miss Campbell, 29, a gold brocade Revolutionary War-era wore an Early American gown that was previously worn by Racquel Welch in the "The Three Musketeers."

• Pope Paul VI Sunday wished the United States a happy 200th birthday and gave the nation his blessing. The 78-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff paused at his study window overlooking St. Peter's Square after delivering his noon message and blessing and gave an English language salute to America.

• Prince Philip of Britain in an interview on the American Bicentennial celebration Sunday said if the British had won the revolutionary war the colonies probably would have broken away from the mother country later anyway. Asked if it would have made any difference if the British had defeated the Americans, he said, "The only difference would have been if there hadn't been a war." He said he could "not visualize the possibility that the United States as it eventually became . . . would remain . . . an appendage of a small island." He was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers" at Buckingham Palace before he and Queen Elizabeth left for a Bicentennial visit of the United States.

Governors urge minimum income plan

A bipartisan task force of governors meeting in Hershey, Pa. proposed Sunday that the federal government establish a standard, nationwide income maintenance system for persons whose income puts them below the poverty line. The proposal, by the National Governors Conference welfare reform task force, came as governors from across the nation gathered to discuss the role of states in the nation's third century. The minimum income support program, the outgrowth of a two-year study by governors under the leadership of Republican Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, includes a work incentive plan for the unemployed. All registered welfare recipients would be required to cooperate with employment programs and accept suitable work.

July 4 bomb attempt foiled

A July 4 attempt to blow up a state police barracks in Topsfield, Mass. failed Sunday as authorities investigating recent New England bombings arrested a man and seized 46 sticks of dynamite. There have been 11 bombings in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire since April 22. FBI Special Agent Richard Bates said courthouses in Boston, Lowell and Newburyport, Mass., were bombed by devices similar to a pair of tape — wrapped packages of dynamite found in the suspect's automobile Sunday.

Rubber strike talks progress: official

United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito Sunbay reported progress in a marathon negotiating session, but declined to say settlement of the nationwide rubber strike is near. Bommarito would not say specifically which issues had been discussed. However, he commented that the negotiations were down to "the gut issues." Presumably, that would mean a cost of living formula, wages and pensions. The URW struck Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal April 21.

Plane explodes, 17 dead

A Burma Air Force plane carrying 17 persons exploded in flight Saturday, killing all aboard, the country's news agency reported Sunday. The agency said 14 military men and three women relatives were killed in the explosion of the DC3 aircraft. The plane caught fire and exploded near Daiku, a town about 60 miles northeast of Rangoon, the agency said.

Numeiry seeks emergency U.N. meeting

President Jaafar Numeiry of Sudan called Sunday for an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss the "foreign invasion" he said was behind the weekend attempt to overthrow his regime. The newspaper Al Sahafa said about 300 persons were killed and another 300 wounded in fighting Friday and Saturday during the abortive coup. In Cairo, Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi said Egypt had put its armed forces on alert for possible intervention in the Sudan to support Numeiry.

Spain seeks to form new government

King Juan Carlos of Spain, summoned newly appointed Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez Gonzalez to the Zarzuela Palace Sunday apparently for talks on the formation of a new government to guide Spain toward democracy. Juan Carlos chose Suarez, 43, as government chief Saturday from a secret three-candidate list proposed by the 16-man Council of the Realm, an advisory body created by the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Interim RTA plan to be told today

The four suburban members of the Regional Transportation Authority will propose a temporary solution to the RTA's budget crisis during a news conference today board member Daniel Baldino said Sunday night.

The suburban members plunged the board into a financial crisis last Wednesday when they refused to ratify a budget for fiscal 1977 until board Chairman Milton Pikarsky resigned.

The four also were expected to propose that a two-member team replace Pikarsky and that day to day operations and long range planning be divided between the two members.

The plan to split the current duties of the board chairman between two persons was first proposed by Chicago RTA board member Patrick O'Malley in May. But O'Malley wanted Pikarsky to remain in charge of policy decisions, a move the suburban board members opposed.

3 cops shot in robbery

Three North Chicago policemen were shot Saturday night during an attempted armed robbery at a McDonald's hamburger restaurant, authorities said Sunday.

Policeman Charles Watkins, 25, was shot in the arm and chest and taken to St. Theresa Hospital, Waukegan. He was reported in good condition Sunday evening.

Also shot were officers Charles Holderbaum, 49, and Johnie Phelps, 24. They were treated and released.

Police said Roman McNutt, 27, and David Cooper, 19, both of Waukegan, were charged with armed robbery and attempted murder.

Mars wetter than anticipated

Viking 1 sends 'puzzling' data

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Some of the Viking Project scientists were spending the long holiday weekend studying "puzzling" Martian data sent back by Viking 1.

"A different picture of a dynamic planet is emerging," a scientist said.

The spacecraft is to send its lander to the surface of Mars July 17 in an area called the Northwest Territory, a windy northern plain that once may have been the end of a river delta.

TEMPERATURE AND water vapor readings of the planet gathered from infra-red spectroscopy instruments on the orbiting spacecraft do not fit the theories, a spokesman at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Sunday.

"Some of these readings are frankly puzzling," Dr. George Sands of Mission Control said.

"It's obviously wetter than they anticipated. There's no doubt there's ground fog at the landing site during part of the day," a JPL spokesman said.

"And the amount of argon at the south polar region — that's something interesting."

The south polar region temperatures were colder than scientists thought possible, below the condensation point of carbon dioxide which makes up much of the Martian atmosphere.

TESTS ALSO showed the polar cap region had about 80 per cent of an inert gas which was believed to be argon. But the gas does not cover the planet in such amounts, the spokesman said.

About 30 microns of water have been found in the atmosphere at the landing site, enough to cause ground fog, frost and even snow.

The models of Mars scientists had been working with did not provide for the data they have received, the spokesman said.

Also being studied were radar readings from the 1,000 foot dish at Arecibo, Puerto Rico, which scientists said would help determine the hazards of the landing site.

Viking 1's orbit will be shifted July 8 with course correction and it will slowly move toward the landing site, about 150 miles from the first choice landing area which was found to be too hazardous.

On July 12, another course correction, requiring a small engine burn, will be made to put the spacecraft into synhcronization with the rotation of the planet prior to separation and landing.

Cat home after 4,000-mile journey by train, plane

GREENVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — Fujui, a male Siamese cat, was meowing loudly, but contentedly, at home Sunday, an experienced traveler after a 4,000-mile, two-week crosscountry odyssey as a train stowaway and general hobo.

Fujui was reunited with his owner, Gene North, 42, a sales engineer, at the nearby Dayton International Airport Saturday after returning to this west central Ohio area via United Airlines and courtesy of the Union Pacific Railroad.

The cat's trip began when he hitched a ride on a plumber's truck.

"I had a plumber out to the house to fix the kitchen sink on June 19th," North said. "He had to pick up some additional parts. He had driven his truck about three blocks down the street when he heard a holler and thump and saw the cat on the street. When he returned, the cat was gone."

NORTH SPENT several days searching the area and had given his two-year pet up for lost when he received a telephone call from Spokane, Wash.

"I thought someone was pulling a hell of a big joke at first," North said. "But they finally convinced me that my cat was in the state of Washington. You know, a couple of thousand miles is unbelievable. He never went 30 feet out of the yard before."

Fujui, after he jumped from the plumber's truck, apparently boarded a freight train on nearby train tracks. He wound up in a cooled boxcar at the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. plant near Spokane — half starved. The railroad calculated that Fujui travelled 2,079 miles by train.

Employes at the plant nursed the cat back to health and then contacted North when they found his name on a tag on the cat's collar.

"I guess Union Paciifc felt responsible since the cat wound up on one of their trains, so they picked up the entire tab of flying the cat back to me," North said.

"He's in great shape today," said North Sunday. "I just wish he could talk. It would be a great story."

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

IN A SPECIAL observance of the nation's 200th birthday, 1,776 immigrants were naturalized in a ceremony at the Chicago Stadium early Sunday.

Illinois briefs

Interim RTA plan to be told today

The four suburban members of the Regional Transportation Authority will propose a temporary solution to the RTA's budget crisis during a news conference today board member Daniel Baldino said Sunday night.

The suburban members plunged the board into a financial crisis last Wednesday when they refused to ratify a budget for fiscal 1977 until board Chairman Milton Pikarsky resigned.

The four also were expected to propose that a two-member team replace Pikarsky and that day to day operations and long range planning be divided between the two members.

The plan to split the current duties of the board chairman between two persons was first proposed by Chicago RTA board member Patrick O'Malley in May. But O'Malley wanted Pikarsky to remain in charge of policy decisions, a move the suburban board members opposed.

3 cops shot in robbery

Three North Chicago policemen were shot Saturday night during an attempted armed robbery at a McDonald's hamburger restaurant, authorities said Sunday.

Policeman Charles Watkins, 25, was shot in the arm and chest and taken to St. Theresa Hospital, Waukegan. He was reported in good condition Sunday evening.

Also shot were officers Charles Holderbaum, 49, and Johnie Phelps, 24. They were treated and released.

Police said Roman McNutt, 27, and David Cooper, 19, both of Waukegan, were charged with armed robbery and attempted murder.

Mars wetter than anticipated

Viking 1 sends 'puzzling' data

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Some of the Viking Project scientists were spending the long holiday weekend studying "puzzling" Martian data sent back by Viking 1.

"A different picture of a dynamic planet is emerging," a scientist said.

The spacecraft is to send its lander to the surface of Mars July 17 in an area called the Northwest Territory, a windy northern plain that once may have been the end of a river delta.

"And the amount of argon at the south polar region — that's something interesting."

The south polar region temperatures were colder than scientists thought possible, below the condensation point of carbon dioxide which makes up much of the Martian atmosphere.

TESTS ALSO showed the polar cap region had about 80 per cent of an inert gas which was believed to be argon. But the gas does not cover the planet in such amounts, the spokesman said.

About 30 microns of water have been found in the atmosphere at the landing site, enough to cause ground fog, frost and even snow.

The models of Mars scientists had been working with did not provide for the data they have received, the spokesman said.

Also being studied were radar readings from the 1,000 foot dish at Arecibo, Puerto Rico, which scientists said would help determine the hazards of the landing site.

Viking 1's orbit will be shifted July 8 with course correction and it will slowly move toward the landing site, about 150 miles from the first choice landing area which was found to be too hazardous.

On July 12, another course correction, requiring a small engine burn, will be made to put the spacecraft into synhcronization with the rotation of the planet prior to separation and landing.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Two-year-old James Johnston gets his first real feel for a horse.

Track fest sure bet as kid pleaser

Like most holidays, the Fourth of July is really for children. And the Arlington Park Race Track saw to it Sunday that the track came alive for them, too.

In addition to its first Sunday race, the track offered rare tours of the paddock for children as well as their parents. Children could actually touch, feel and straddle the horses they would later see just fly by on the track.

The tours were part of the track's effort to make the one-time-only Sunday racing a holiday celebration. Other events included a flag marching unit and fireworks display, the kinds of things children will remember from a holiday.

Letters sent to legislators

Township asks flu shot law as liability shield

The Palatine Township Board has asked U.S. Senators Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., and U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, to "initiate or support" legislation that would provide complete liability protection to participants in a proposed nationwide swine flu inoculation program.

The auditors requested the action in letters written by Township Supervisor Howard Olsen and sent to the three federal legislators.

Concern about the legal liability involved in administering the swine flu vaccination has been expressed at several meetings of Task Force '76, the township's group of representatives from area villages and hospitals which have met to plan for a possible program of vaccinating township residents.

THE LETTERS to Crane, Percy and Stevenson were prompted by a task force meeting last month. Representatives from school, health, community and governmental organizations then voiced concern over the possibility of malpractice suits against those involved in any inoculation program. Representatives suggested residents who had an adverse reaction to the vaccination could blame the volunteer who gave the shot and ultimately blame and sue the agency which organized the program.

Palatine was the first township in Cook County to begin planning for a possible swine flu inoculation program. The Task Force '76 was organized in May at the suggestion of auditor Liston Pennington.

The group has met twice since its formation and has a third meeting scheduled July 31 at township hall.

Since the group's first meeting, Harper College in Palatine has received approval from the Cook County Health Dept. to administer the swine flu vaccination the second week in September.

THE FIRST three days of the proposed five-day inoculation program, Sept. 10 to 15, also were approved.

Ten possible clinic sites to administer the vaccination in the Northwest suburbs have been donated to the county so far and are awaiting inspection and approval from county health officials.

July 4 no big track day despite '76 festivities

It was a so-so attendance day at the Arlington Park Race Track July 4, the one-time Sunday racing date that was first rejected then later approved by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

Attendance was 22,259 persons, an average-sized crowd, not one of the larger gates. Some gates have topped 30,000.

The July 4 racing date won approval from local officials after Arlington Park officials enlarged their July 4 program to include Bicentennial activities and attractions.

THOSE INCLUDED free breakafst and tours of the park's facilities, a full card of racing including the American Derby, a $100,000-to $150,000-added stake race and a flag marching unit performance.

Displays included a paramedic unit from the Arlington Heights Village Fire Dept., a beer barrell which holds more than 1,000 gallons from the Old Chicago beer company and an antique beer delivery truck.

The race track itself was decked out in Bicentennial fare. American flags topped the track score board and even the horses wore red, white and blue ribbons and pompons in their braided manes. The winner's circle was also outlined in red, white and blue banners.

Race track officials had assured questioning residents that the July 4 racing date would not set a precedent for future Sunday racing.

"I DON'T THINK the track could support seven days of racing," a track box owner from Barrington said. "Six days of racing are plenty and if you add Sunday, you'll detract from the Saturday crowds."

A cocktail waitress in the grandstands said the Sunday crowds were about average drinkers although her area consisted mostly of horse owners and "dedicated gamblers, and neither are very serious drinkers," she said.

Sunday racing attracted roughly "the same kinds of people who come during the week," an Andy Frain track guard said. "There are some new faces but I recognize a lot of them too," the guard said.

Stores lose $1,000 in Woodfield thefts

Thieves invaded three shops at Woodfield Shopping Center after closing hours late last week, and stole $1,000 cash, Schaumburg police reported.

Burglars entered through a rear door at the Tie Inn after 9:30 p.m. Friday and before 9 a.m. Saturday, and stole $461 cash from an office desk, police said.

Burglars stole $200 cash and $300 in checks after they pried open the front door of the Picture Place between 9:30 p.m. Thursday and 9:30 a.m. Friday, police said.

Thieves took $340 from a desk drawer in the Scholl Footcare Center office Thursday night or early Friday morning, police reported. No forcible entry was evident, police said.

The local scene

Scout cited for heroism

The honor medal for heroic action has been awarded to Arlington Heights Cub Scout Jeff Kyloc, 9, by the Boy Scouts of America.

Kyloc is credited with saving the life of Greg Raimes, 10, who fell through the ice of a retention pond in Arlington Heights Dec. 27.

2 attend convention

Two Arlington Heights men recently attended the 61st convention of Kiwanis International in San Diego, Calif.

Kenneth L. Rateike, 307 S. Patton Ave., and Ronald Urkovich, 218 N. Ridge Ave., are members of the Wheeling Township Kiwanis Club.

McCarthy gets grant

Karen McCarthy, a graduate of Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, was awarded a four-year college scholarship by Pitney Bowes.

She will receive $1,000 a year for four years. She was among 16 students of Pitney Bowes employes granted scholarships.

Backyard Bible schools

All children in the village are invited to attend the Backyard Vacation Bible Schools sponsored by St. Peter Lutheran Church.

The schools will be held July 12-16 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. each day.

The Bible schools will be held at five Arlington Heights locations: 2407 N. Hickory Ln.; 203 W. Lillian Ave.; 825 N. Harvard Ave.; 1213 N. Dunton Ave.; and 833 N. Chestnut Ave.

Additional information is available by calling 259-4114.

Stone figurine altered direction of Heart's trial

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

PITTSBURG, Calif. — (NEA) — In the historical post mortems of the trial of Patricia Campbell Hearst, no single item looms more important than the accidental discovery of the significance of a little piece of carved stone found in her purse at the time of arrest.

More than anything, it shattered the imposing credibility of Patty Hearst as a witness — and vaulted James Browning, the prosecuting attorney, into competency as a courtroom advocate.

This then is the saga of Old Mac-Monkey, as an FBI report described the key artifact of the Hearst trial.

Borwning, an Ichabod Cranish character in appearance, has been in demand as a speaker coast-to-coast at such disparate places as the Harvard Law School and a Contra Costa County newspaper workshop — the result of his trial victory over the more spectacular F. Lee Bailey. And the highlight is when he recounts his solution to the mystery of Old MacMonkey.

The national press had been almost contemptuous of Browning's court work. In his cross-examination of Patty Hearst, Browning had brought up the subject of Willie Wolfe, an SLA member who, she contended, had raped her in a closet. In a subsequent tape, she talked glowingly of Cujo (Wolfe), who died in a Los Angeles shootout. Wasn't it true, Browning asked, that she said she has a strong feeling for Wolfe?

Urging her still further, he asked, "What was that feeling?"

Patty looked at him coolly and snapped:

"I COULDN'T stand him."

On Willie Wolfe's body the police had found a small stone figurine, about an inch and a half long, with a hole pierced through the head where the ears would be. A tape of Patty Hearst mentioned the "monkey" Wolfe wore on a chain around his neck and speculated the "pigs" probably had it — the FBI transcribed it as an "Old Mac-Monkey."

"We never could figure out what that meant," reviews Browning.

While the trial was still on, he went home one night and read an interview with Bill and Emily Harris, Patty's SLA companions, in New Times Magazine. The article referred to a stone relic in the shape of a monkey face that Willie once gave to Patty.

"That rang a bell," says Browning.

The next morning, he contacted the FBI and asked for a review of the articles found in Patty's purse at the time of her capture. He vaguely remembered a stone artifact. The FBI reported there was a small stone in the shape of a head among the contents.

"Old MacMonkey . . . Old Mac . . . it still didn't seem to make sense," notes Browning. He contacted an anthropologist from UCLA to look over the tiny talisman. The man's specialty was Mexican archaeological periods. He quickly verified the fact that the stone in Patty's purse, like the one on Willie Wolfe, was an "Olmec" monkey — referring to a period in Mexican Indian culture. It's not really a monkey — Mexicans refer to all such trinkets as "momos" (monkey).

In his final summation to the jury, Browning displayed the little stone head found in Patty's purse after her arrest. He described the one found under Wolfe's charred body. And he mused abut her carrying the matching artifact around more than a year after Wolfe's death.

"She couldn't stand him," he said pointedly to the jurors, "and yet there is that little stone face that can't say anything. I submit to you it can tell us a lot."

The Olmec monkey was a telling blow against Patty's testimony.

BROWNING, chortling, is quite aware that he was supposed to be the bumbler and Bailey the master strategist. But he feels Bailey didn't understand the turf on which he was operating and therefore made some grave tactical mistakes, among them the "character assassinatiaon" of Dr. Joel Fort, the psychiatric expert for the prosecution.

"Juries don't think much of psychiatric testimony," he claims. "Neither do I. but taking on Fort was a mistake tactically. He is well known and has a good reputation."

Browning's emphasis was on the accumulation of mass evidence and the painstaking building of a case, leaving the theatrics to his adversary.

"My strategy from the beginning," he says, "was to neutralize the psychiatric testimony of the defense and to deal with the facts."

Among the facts — prominent as it turned out in supporting the government's case — was the unassailable presence of the Olmec monkey.

The way we see it

Gas tax plan seems better than head tax, not ideal

The one cent a gallon gasoline tax proposed Friday by Cook County Board Pres. George W. Dunne is not the sort of idea to draw cheers, but at least it is better than his earlier proposal for an employe head tax.

The gasoline tax is sure to come under fire from gasoline dealers and motorists. While it is more broadly based than the employe head tax, it will not gain acceptance until everyone in the county is convinced the county budget is strapped for money.

However, it is encouraging that Dunne bowed to the overwhelming opposition of business leaders and suburban officials by withdrawing the head tax proposal.

The $3 a month head tax, with its ill-conceived "revenue sharing" provisions which would have involved county government with local municipalities, was an idea with little merit.

The gasoline tax has the advantage of being somewhat fairer. It would be better to raise the county's needed money through a tax — such as the property tax — paid by all county residents, but it is obvious that Dunne does not believe a property tax increase is politically expedient.

Before any new tax is adopted, however, Dunne would be wise to heed the questions of Republican county board members and business leaders, including the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, who are asking whether the county needs a tax increase at all.

The state chamber has proposed that a blue ribbon panel of businessmen be named to study the county's budget and operations in order to determine where, and whether, the county budget could be cut.

Such an exercise could be healthy, because many persons are convinced county government is filled with waste and mismanagement. If the operation is as tight and financially strapped as Dunne says it is, he has nothing to lose and everything to gain by commissioning such a study.

If, on the other hand, the study finds that the county can save the $18 million Dunne says it needs without raising taxes, the taxpayers will be spared additional pain.

That outcome, certainly, would be the best of all.

Farmer, physicist, Jimmy Carter has many sides

by TOM TIEDE

PLAINS, Ga. — NEA — Jimmy Carter is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent. Lordy, how reverent.

He is a farmer, a scientist, a sailor, a nuclear physicist, a businessman, a writer and a former governor. His wife says she loves him so much even his picture turns her on. His children say he's the best daddy in the cosmos. And his neighbors believe he can spin gold from straw.

Why, then, have half the reporters in the Western World come here to where the kudzu meets the honeysuckle, where the water runs west to the Chattahoochee, to search for bad bones from the man's past?

Watergate, maybe. Everyone alive is suspect these days. But more than this, the hunt for Carter's flaw can only be explained by the experience of contact with the man. Those who have followed him on his remarkable trek to the Democratic nomination, and who are not on his payroll or wearing his political sticker, are often struck by two contradictory impressions: respect and unease. He is so decent, and at the same time so unbearably political it gives pause.

Example. While ostensibly taking a free moment during the Florida primary, Carter visited a Sunday school class made up of third graders. After some perfunctory remarks about the goodness of God, Carter seized a personal opportunity. "How many of you have mothers and fathers and grandmothers and grandfathers and neighbors and friends?" He asked the squirming group. "Well, if you ask all those people to vote for me," smile, "I could get elected," big smile, "and if I get elected you can come see me in the White House!"

At best it was political low ball. Sunday school is dull enough for the tots without it turning into a stump revival. Besides, if he is elected, and the kids did come to the White House, they would stand in line, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2, and be watched by the sentries like everyone else. Fred Harris, the only other candidate to issue White House invitations during the primaries, said in the end: "I don't know what I'd have done if I'd won and they all came."

ADMITTEDLY, overanxiousness is hardly a political flaw. And as Eric Hoffer says it: "Charlatanism to some degree is indispnsable in a leader." And yet many wonder. Even the candidate's sister-in-law, Sybil Carter, says: "Jimmy is so determined I'm a little afraid of him."

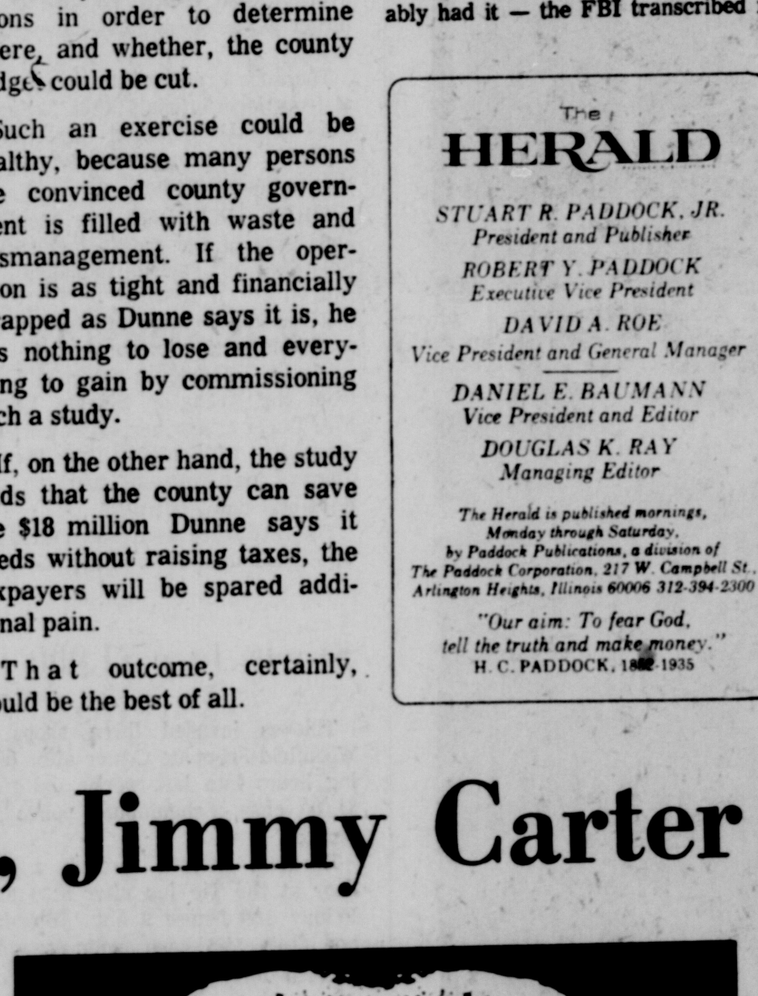

To a large degree, Carter invites the fear and suspicion. As a Spanish newsman recently said of him, "He is an exuberant pragmatist with puritan overtones, and anti-politican and an anti-ideologue who doesn't seem to worry about his own contradictions." Correct. According to Carter he is not capable of contradictions. The record, however, indicates otherwise; and it can be embarrassing.

To start, there is no doubt that race was the unspoken issue, and Carter the undeniable antagonist, during his 1970 gubernatorial contest against Carl Sanders. Carter ran as the redneck, in team with the bigoted Lester Maddox; Sanders was no Lincoln regarding black people, says Maddox today, "but Jimmy out-crackered him."

How? When an Atlanta newspaper printed a picture of Sanders with a black baseball player, Carter associates saw to it the photo was widely viewed in rural white bastions. And when the ax handle crowds gathered at a rally, Carter praised Maddox as "a fine Georgian."

"He called me his warm friend at every stop," Maddox remembers. "When I'd helped him become governor, he practically threw me out of the State House. In other words he used me. And he lied to the people of Georgia just as he is lying again today to the people of the U.S."

The other lies to which Maddox alludes concern mostly well-covered ground. Carter once courted George Wallace, but now says he didn't. He once felt such pain for My Lai murderer William Calley, he asked everyone in Georgia to turn on their lights for "America's slandered fighting men." Then there was Vietnam, which Carter supported longer than any major Democratic official in the nation, and which he now tells black audiences was "an immoral, unwise, racist war."

BUT THE MAJOR contradiction of the present-day Jimmy Carter, according to Maddox and legions of other conservatives, is that the candidate has won the nomination using one political philosophy and plans to win the election using another. A la the Georgia precedent, many feel Carter is shifting from right to left. He is suddenly backing some form of price controls, favoring hand gun control, supporting ERA and advocating the decriminalization of marijuana. Disgusted rightists at the National Review presently call Carter "McGovern with a drawl."

Thus the unease of the hunters armed with pencils who are swarming over the fields of Georgia. Two centuries after George Washington there is another potential president whom legend insists cannot tell a lie — but who not only can and does, but, moreover, gets away with it.

And yet once this is understood, once the visitor here accepts that candidate Carter is as politically as he is morally motivated, there is something of a mild understanding of the process and of the person.

Jimmy Carter grew up with the idea of proving himself. Not proving here in the sticks of Georgia, necessarily, for here the accident of birth made him something special from the start. His grandfather was a postmaster who first suggested the idea of rural free mail delivery, his family name was an honored and important one in South Georgia going back into the 18th century and he was a relatively propserous white lad in a mostly shabby and black region. But what was this in the wider world? Outside Plains he was a country bumpkin.

CARTER FIRST cut loose from the farm image at Annapolis. A classmate remembers him as "shy, but progressive." He studied nuclear physics and later became one of the select few to be handpicked into Hyman Rickover's elite submarine braintrust. When his father died he quit the service to help on the farm, but he was a country bumpkin no more; one Pentagon official who has studied Carter's Navy records says if he had continued his career he'd have two or three stars today.

Back home, now sophisticated, he was still on the outside looking in at the broader society. And when he ran for governor he did so again, in the opinion of friends, to prove himself. Says Tom Murphy, a one-time Carter supporter who is now speaker of the Georgia House: "He went to the people like he was leading a crusade against the bad guys. What he really meant was that he was not part of the power structure and wanted to be. I think he really believed he could be a reformer; but there was a lot of ego involved."

And so it has been today, throughout the presidential nominating season. Carter has been the fellow with something to prove: that the bumpkin can knock off the slicks, that his faith in himself is justified, that a proper candidate from the South can be just as potent as anyone else.

The last factor is most important. Friends say Carter has long resented the "southern stigma" he has carried about. "I think one of his real joys," says a northernaide in his Atlanta headquarters, "is that he has brought honor to the people down here."

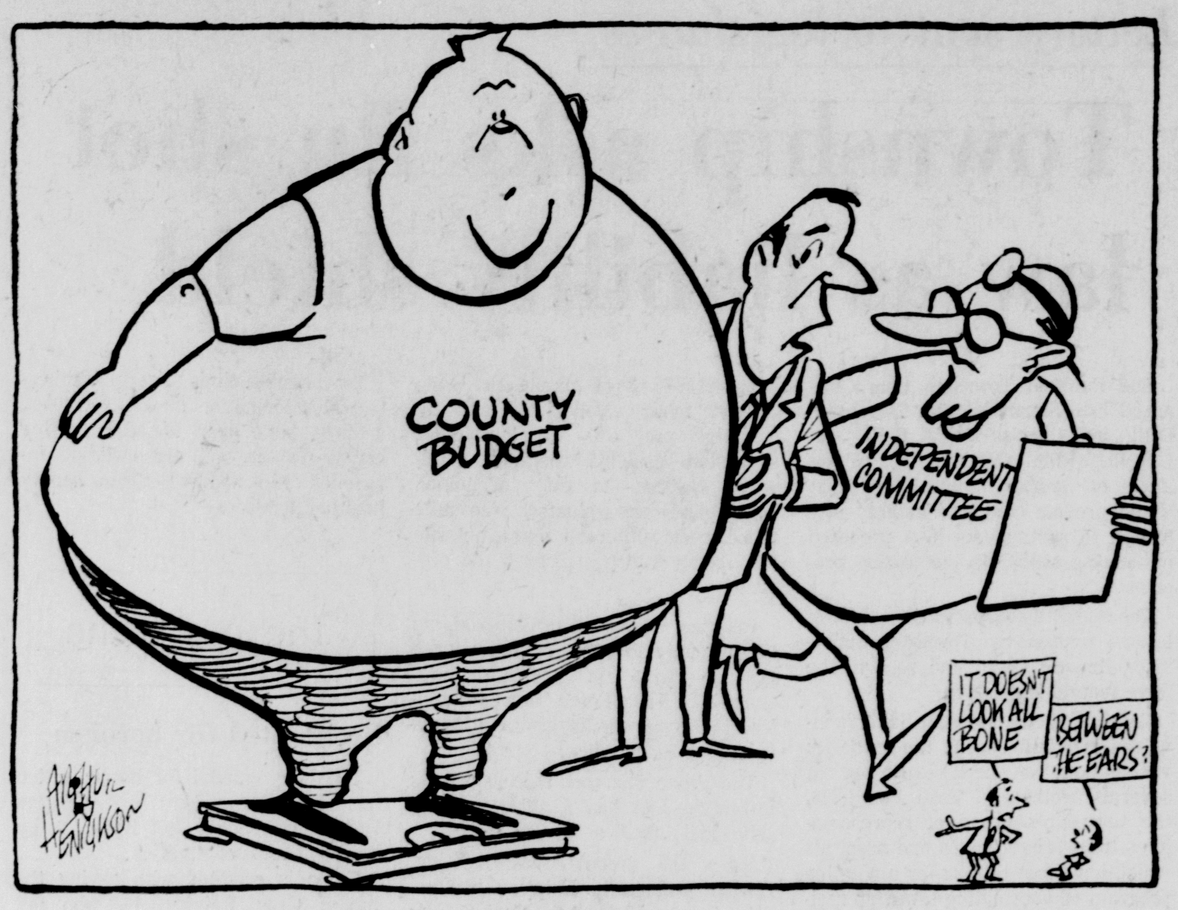

YET THE HONOR has not been without heavy costs. Even in Georgia, where Jimmy Carter has become as dear as Dr. Pepper, the candidate is criticized for some of his tactics. A preacher in nearby Augusta, a friend of the Carter family who asks for anonymity, says sadly: "He has used God, I think, for his own ends. We all do this a little, but Jimmy is brazen. I think he'll come to regret it one day."

What the preacher means is that the candidate has established for himself a moral image which he can't possibly maintain in the realities of politics. Already he has shown a mean side, by forcing George McGovern to sack an aide who was organizing a "Stop Carter" movement; and already there are defectors from his camp who say he is a fraud. A White House with Carter, some feel, would be politics wrapped in piety — and there is nothing so evil as self-righteous evil.

But that is the pessismistic view of the flaw hunters here. One can speculate any gloom, but in clear fact there is little of substance to pin on Jimmy Carter. Even the soft rap that he has no sense of humor does not stand up. Any native of Plains knows, for example, that a seven-course meal for a cracker is possum pie and a six pack. And recently at a class reunion, when an old classmate told of her secretarial job, Jimmy cracked: "But can you type?"

His flaw then is that he is only human, but he seems to handle the condition better than most — no small feat for a political man.

Opportunity calling

Investors hear knock at door

by LEA TONKIN
First of Three Parts

Opportunity knocks and if attendance at the recent Chicago Mid-America Own Your Own Business Show is an indicator, many investors are ready to answer.

The exhibit hall at the O'Hare Inn, Des Plaines, was packed as people flocked to hear franchise and distributorship salesmen.

Amidst sometimes feverish sales promotion, would-be business owners eyeballed the handouts and listened to sales claims.

AS SOME OF the salesmen and women told it, there are an abundance of "depression-proof" and otherwise attractive businesses just sitting there, waiting for takers. Name-droppers noted that the U.S. Dept. of Commerce, McDonald's and other recognized institutions are somehow tied to the potential in their business ventures.

There are opportunities to suit nearly any business taste. If an investor doesn't choose to sell shoe-cleaning machines, jewelry or mufflers, he could make a good living in home maintenance or in selling imported wines.

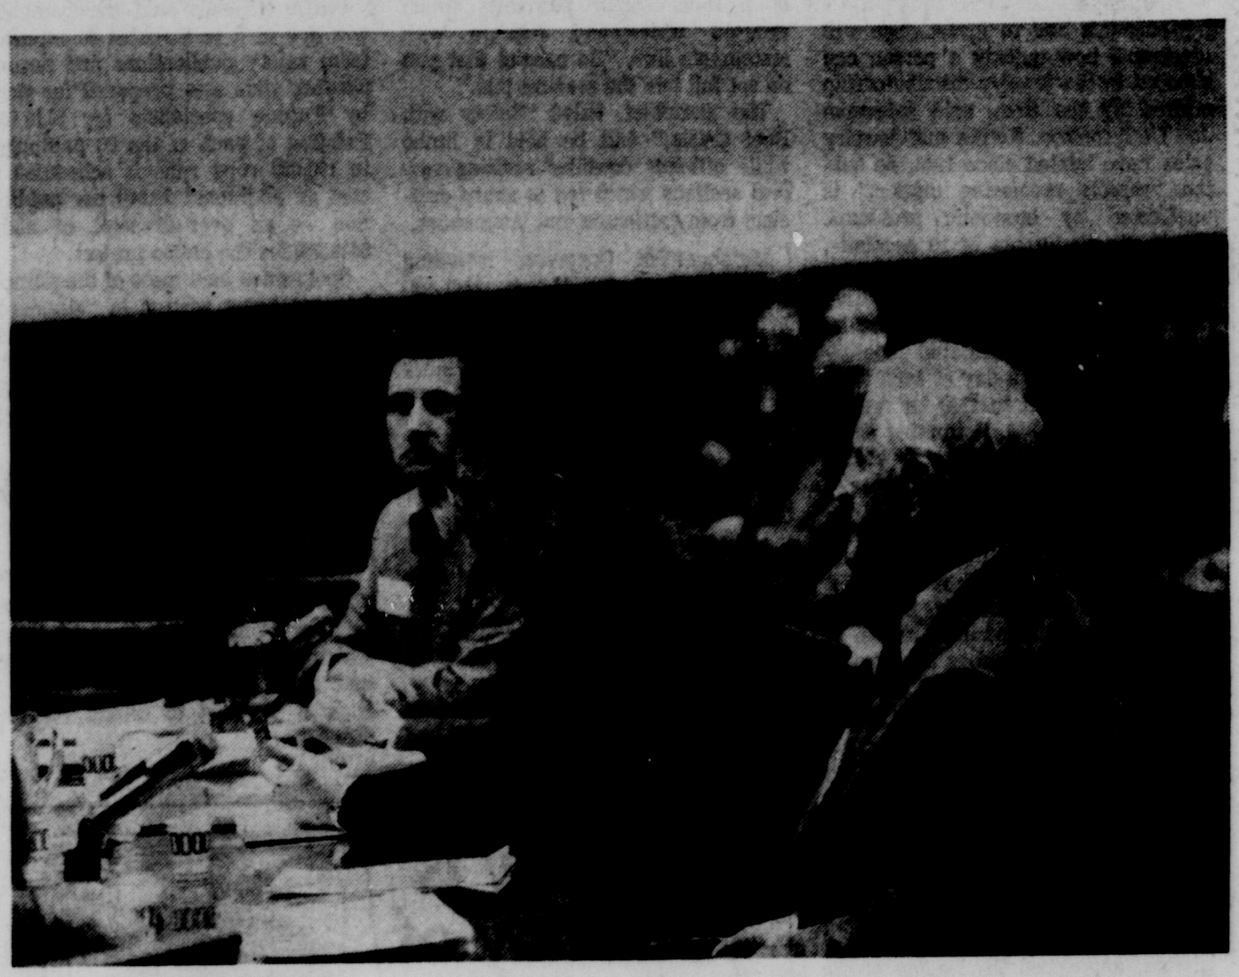

Opportunities for sale were described as franchises, distributorships, special manager incentive programs and various other ventures.

A brief description of several exhibitors' offerings indicates a wide-range of "own your own business" possibilities though some franchise firms such as McDonald's restaurant operation do not participate in shows of this type.

• The Hallmark Program, Oak Brook regional office — "When considering a social expression 'Hallmark Shop' as a business opportunity, you will no doubt have many questions about Hallmark's policies and operation," brochure states. A company representative said most Hallmark shops are privately owned and operated, not franchise stores. An average pre-tax net profit margin of a well-run store is 12 to 20 per cent annually, the salesman said. In addition to the average initial investment of $70,000 for a card shop, the investor may participate in a retail services contract for training. The fee for the added service is $2,500 and 2 per cent of the first year's sales.

• Service Master, Downers Grove — It is "an opportunity for men and women to start a business of their own and join the more than 1,500 ServiceMaster franchised businesses throughout the world," the company literature said. Described by a salesman as an authority on professioal care and cleaning services and the source of quality chemicals and products, the firm also offers training in "cleaning technology." A franchisee may expect to pay a fee of $3,250 plus other charges amounting to a com-

This swindle can wreck small business

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

by ROBERT S. ROSEFSKY

If you own or work for or supply a small business, beware of a vicious swindle that can devastate the firm, cause a loss of jobs and create hard-to-collect debts. It comes and goes in cycles and is particularly alluring to the victim during a business recovery, as many are in now.

Here's an example of how it works:

Joe owns a modest furniture store. One of his major accounts over the years has been a nearby motel. Joe replaces the beds, mattresses, TVs and so forth as they wear out. They've been doing business for years, and both parties have been very content with the dealings.

THE RECESSION meant hard times for both of them during the past year or so. Joe is hungry — perhaps a bit too much — for orders. He naturally wants to make up for the lean times he's been through.

Suddenly, like manna from heaven, the motel comes through with a big order: 50 new TV sets, dozens of new mattresses, chairs, desks and the like. Joe figures that business for the motel has taken a sharp turn-around for the better, and happy days are here again.

Some weeks later the order is delivered, and Joe waits patiently for his payment, which usually comes within 10 days. After two weeks of no payment, Joe drives to the motel and is shocked to find that it is closed. Standing there in the empty parking lot, equally bewildered, are the suppliers who provide food and liquor to the motel restaurant, the man who sells them their linen and towels, and the contractor who had recently delivered dozens of brand-new air-conditioners.

All told, the group is out more than $50,000.

What happened?

UNBEKNOWNST TO JOE and the others, the motel had been sold recently to a fellow we all know: Snake Oil Sam. He had made a too-good-to-be-true offer to the hard-pressed owners. But with no down payment, of course.

It was Sam who placed the orders for the furniture and the food and the booze and new linens and air conditioners. And it was Sam's truck onto which all of these things were loaded after they had been delivered. And it was Sam's fence who sold them to unwitting buyers in another city a few days later. And it was Sam who closed the motel and disappeared after dismissing all of its employes, who hadn't been paid for two weeks, but were high on promises of big raises after the remodeling was completed. And it was Sam's pockets that were nicely stuffed.

Clever? You bet. And hard to avoid. It's not usual to run a credit check on a firm you've been doing a regular steady business with over the years. But it's a good idea to do so, especially if you know the firm's been having hard times, and more especially when an order comes in that seems too good to be true. But even this may not have helped, because Sam would have inherited the otherwise good credit rating from the former owners.

The best advice in this tough situation: be prudent, be on guard, take all precautions, and listen to that too-good - to - be - true siren when it goes off. It signals possible trouble.

THOUGHTS ON A MATTRESS

Poem: Back-ache Blues*

Once upon a midnight sleeping,
Suddenly I woke up weeping.
Something happened in my mattress
To disturb my night's repose.
While I rested nearly napping.
Suddenly there came a snapping
As the springs unleashed their zapping
Every time I tried to doze.

Why is this mattress getting bumpy?
Why the surface worn and lumpy?
Could it be because I've used it
Every night for twenty years?
Maybe I should buy a new one
To replace this ancient ruin.
Could the Schaumburg Mattress Factory
Drive away my back-ache tears?

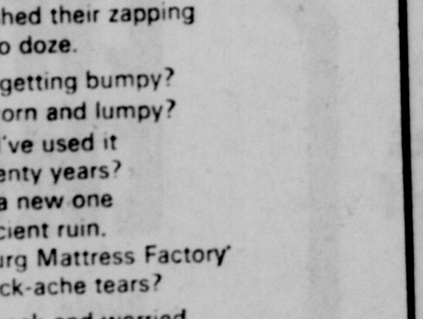

Morning found me weak and worried.
To the Factory I hurried.
Bought a mattress and a box spring
To relieve my back-ache blues.
Now I sleep with blissful ease.
No more back-ache memories.
Now I know why Schaumburg Mattress
Well deserves its rave reviews.

• Deck & Decker Personnel Consultants, Ltd., Springfield, Mo. — John Decker, an executive of the personnel office franchise firm, handed out literature describing the "new dream business" for the "financial rewards you've always dreamed about." Asked how the $15,000 investment would bring riches, Decker said, "You've heard of Snelling & Snelling, haven't you? We're in the same business." He said an "exclusive, proven" system would allow investors to expand to their full potentials.

L.S. Creations, Providence, R.I. — A willingness to spend time servicing accounts and to invest cash will determine how quickly a person can succeed in the jewelry distributorship offered by the firm, said salesman Joe DeGeronimo. Noting that jewelry sales have tripled since 1946, he said the "rapidly escalating market" is unaffected by economic problems. For a distributorship of 10 accounts, L.S. Creations charges $3,700. The investor would spend an average five hours a week servicing accounts, he said. DeGeronimo estimated monthly profit on two sales a day at each location would amount to $780 for an annual figure of $9,360. Estimated earnings increased as the number of accounts and required investment rose.

• Minuteman Press, Farmingdale, N.Y. — There are at least 30 reasons why Minuteman is for you, said a salesman for the printing franchise business. He explained each reason in detail. Among the reasons are "printing is a high profit business" and "no experience is necessary." The salesman said the use of an Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. offset press and a 3M camera plate system give the franchise "total graphics capability matched by no other single unit on the market." The intial investment is generally $40,000 to $45,000. A 6 per cent commission on gross sales is charged by the franchiser. The salesman had no specific information on topics such as cancellation, a franchisee's right to approve a store site or how many shops would be opened in a market area.

Farmer's safety booklet rapped; halted by labor unit

Labor Dept. officials have announced they are halting distribution of a farm safety pamphlet which aroused widespread ridicule with statements like, "Be careful that you do not fall into the manure pits."

The pamphlet, titled "Safety with Beef Cattle," will be held in limbo while officials consider revising several sections which led to sharp criticism from cattlemen and lawmakers.

Members of Congress, including Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., had accused the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration of insulting the intelligence of farmers with the primer-style pamphlet.

WRITTEN FOR OSHA officials under contract by specialists at Purdue University, the pamphlet also warned that:

• "Hazards are one of the main causes of accidents. A hazard is anything that is dangerous."

• "When floors are wet and slippery with manure, you could have a bad fall."

• "Ladders that are not strong or have broken steps can cause a bad fall. If yours is broken, do not climb it."

OSHA offiicials said the pamphlet was one of a package of 60 separate farm safety publications and accompanying slide sets prepared for them by Purdue specialists for $119,000. Printing of each of the 60 pamphlets in 100,000 copy runs is scheduled to cost an additional $8,000 per publication — an over-all total of about $600,000 for the entire project.

Spokesmen said most of the pamphlets are being written in "standard" language. The controversial beef publication, they explained, was a "simple language" version written for "farm workers with reading problems."

A spokesman said the "entire project" including primer-style pamphlets on other farm safety subjects "is now under review."

Another OSHA official said careful writing could produce simplified safety instructions which "repeat things which people know but tend to forget, and do it without saying things in such a way as to offend common sense."

TWO HUNDRED YEARS of American history produced some interesting and wildly varied men's clothing — from waistcoated gentleman of the Revolutionary War period to today's high fashion. 1776: broadcloths, fine woolens and brocade waistcoats. 1820: a truly all-American look, the frontiersman in fringed buckskins, boots and moccasins. 1850: Southern gentleman in splendid elegance. 1900: stiff, formalized clothing in keeping with the era. 1920: the "jazz suit," close fitting with a flare to coat, sleeves and pants. 1930: knickers for both casual wear and campus life. 194: Bermuda shorts and Hawaiian shirts. 1950: the Ivy League look — penny loafers, buttondown shirts and narrow ties. 1966: the Hippie generation. Today: updated Ivy League.

The stylish American male through 200 years

by SCOTT LATHAM

In 1776 in England, it is said the belief still prevailed that a man proved he was a gentleman by not paying his tailor bill. In America, the colonist, angered by taxes and other abominations, were coming to the belief that there were no gentlemen in England.

Who knows, perhaps English tailors agree with the colonists, at any rate, there is certainly no indication that once the yoke of the mother country had been cast off, Americans decided to cast off their English clothing as well.

In this case, at least, fashion tended to outlast the government, whether that is generally true might produce lively debate.

Some countries change leaders more often than some men change their socks; others maintain relative stability while their citizens run willy-nilly buying the latest fashions from London, Paris, Rome and New York.

Whatever the case, it is certain that fashion has always reflected the mood and the needs of the era.

"THIS IS especially true now," according to Norman Karr, executive director of the Men's Fashion Association. "At no other time in U.S. history has the American influence on men's fashions been so great — especially in leisure wear."

Karr adds, "You can't have fashion without some form of Democratic government. In a dictatorship, everyone always seems to be trying to dress like the emperor."

And so, in honor of the Bicentennial, here is a retrospective look at the American male and his clothes.

When the Revolutionary War started, the dress of the average businessman, professional and politician reflected that of England and Europe — broadcloths and fine woolens, often brightened by brocaded waistcoats. For evening and formal occasions, men still wore silks. Red coats were out; britches were in. So were knobby knees and bowlegs.

The first really all-American look evolved from the life of the pioneers and frontiersmen moving west in the spirit of Manifest Destiny. In the 1820s, while Americans began adopting the lands of the Indians, they were also busy adopting their clothes. Fringed buckskins became the uniform of the day. Meanwhile, back East, Andrew Jackson — "Old Hickory" — became the first man in the White House to switch from britches to long pants.

IN THE ANTE-BELLUM days of the Old South, new highs were set in American fashion. Reflecting the gracious mode of living and the vaunted "Southern Hospitality," gentlemen went courting in suits and formal wear distinguished by their quality, cut and fabric.

Several years later, the same gentlemen went to war in gray coats, but it would be a long time before you looked for the union label in the collar.

The turn of the century — a stiff, formalized era — was reflected by stiff, formalized men in long suit jackets and derbies. Everyone who counted wore starched collars and high-button shoes. Professional men wore even more formal "Prince Alberts" and cutaways.

After World War I, American men were ready for a change of pace. The Roaring '20s saw the masses take to the "jazz suit" — high-waisted, close-fitting and with a flare to the coat skirt, sleeves and pants. For the first time, Hollywood began to exert an influence on men's fashions.

In the 1930's, designers looked again to Europe, where the Prince of Wales cavorted in his famous "plus fours." Knickers, extending four inches below the knees, became "the thing" for golf as well as casual wear.

AMERICA WENT to war again, and a new period of drabness was ushered in. Then, perhaps in an overreaction to the end of hostilities, men began buying gaudy Hawaiian print shirts and Bermuda shorts. Even Harry Truman wore them. Some critics suggest that a sunburn and array of cameras came with the outfit, but at any rate it is conceded that the fashion moguls had created the archetypal American tourist.

In the 1950s, it was strictly Ivy League even with men who never saw the inside of a college. Sport coats were natural-shouldered, understated and slim in line. Button-down shirts, narrow ties and "penny" loafers completed the look.

Then came the 1960s and American youth began to rebel against everything. Jeans and long hair were all part of the bizarre uniform. Jeans, of course, have survived. In fact, in many cases they have become high fashion.

Perhaps because of the Bicentennial, or perhaps in honor of it, American men are now dressing up again. At any rate, vests are "de rigeur." In tailored clothing, men can choose from three basic looks — the European with its stylish cut and rope shoulders, the less emphatic but still stylish American clothing, and an updated version of the Ivy League suit.

name was never changed in the first place."

NOT ONLY IS IT objectionable "in principle," it can be an expensive abrogation of rights. A Florida woman wrote the Center that she had been using her late husband's name professionally for 34 years when she remarried. She kept her name, but when she applied for a passport, the Miami Passport Bureau told her she had to get a court order to use that name rather than her second husband's name on the passport. The court order cost her $123.

In 1924 the New York Times, New York World and New York Tribune all published articles supporting the idea of women retaining their own names.

However, in 1973 the Illinois Conference of the National Organization for Women found it necessary to issue a resolution demanding that "the media eliminate this discriminatory practice" of referring to women "as Mrs. Husband's Name."

THE RESOLUTION termed the practice "antiquated and outdated" because it "distinguishes and separates married, divorced and single women and subjugates married women, giving them no identity of their own."

Or, as Debbie Lancaster of Palatine told The Herald when she married Alan Laramore recently, "My name is still and will always be Debbie Lancaster."

Debbie says she was "raised with a lot of family pride. I always felt I would keep my name." Even so, family and friends "didn't understand." After the wedding they called her "Mrs. Laramore."

"I corrected them and they were taken aback. They said, 'He's your husband — you have to take his name. It's always been this way.' Then I explained about it, and most people accepted it."

DEBBIE HAS SO far not had any problems with banks or credit cards — all have readily complied with her and her husband's requests to be listed by their own names.

For some women, keeping the family name also comes out of a sense of history and genealogy. Many pass their names down to their children either hyphenated with the father's name or as a middle name. Such practices have long been common in other countries.

Should all women retain their own names? Many are hotly opposed to the idea, insisting their married state is their identity.

Debbie Lancaster believes that keeping one's own name and identity is "the right thing to do, but you couldn't compel people to do it.

"The decision should be left up to each woman — but they should THINK about it. Just to do it because it's always been this way is not rational. You would have to give me a reason to change my name, and so far I haven't had a reason."

Trick with tissue paper keeps knit fabric from stretching

by Eunice Farmer

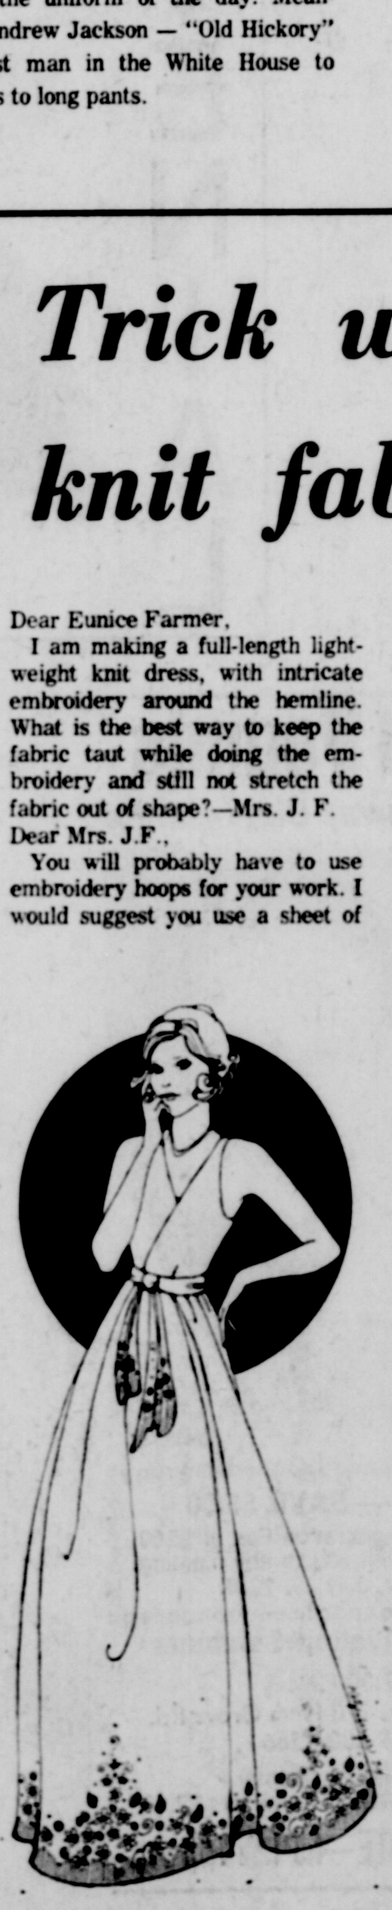

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I am making a full-length lightweight knit dress, with intricate embroidery around the hemline. What is the best way to keep the fabric taut while doing the embroidery and still not stretch the fabric out of shape?—Mrs. J. F.

Dear Mrs. J.F.,

You will probably have to use embroidery hoops for your work. I would suggest you use a sheet of tissue paper under the area you are working on when you apply the embroidery hoops. The tissue will keep the fabric from stretching. It is simple to pull away from the back of the fabric when you have completed your hand work.

Keep shifting the hoops as you go around the entire hem, putting new tissue under each area. This will also work when doing machine embroidery on T-shirts or any other type of knits that would ordinarily stretch out of shape.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I need to make some slacks for summer, yet I am on a strict diet and know I will be losing weight. How can I make the slacks fit now without having them bag around the waistline in a few weeks?—Mrs. M.P.

I would suggest you treat the waistline as if you were applying elastic. Use the more fitted method by stitching your darts in front and back for fitting. Also apply a zipper to the center front or back. I would also suggest you use the one-inch, non-roll elastic in the waistline.

As you lose weight, the area that changes quickest is the waistline. The elastic will keep the pants fitting smoothly. Because you fitted them with darts in the beginning, there won't be too much extra fabric to bulge with gathers as you become smaller.

If you have lost more than two inches in the waistline, you might rip the top of the pants, fit the side seams in closer and continue with the elastic, perhaps tightening it slightly. If you lose many inches, you will find the crotch seam will be too long and loose. This requires opening the inseam, taking in each leg separately, then re-stitching the crotch area in one continuous seam. This also shortens the crotch.

A final reward when you have accomplished your goal is to make yourself a new pair of slacks to show off your new body. Congratulations!

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I just love everything about a new pattern with the exception of the bias skirt. Could I use the same pattern and simply change the skirt?—Mrs. K.Z.

Dear Mrs. K.Z.,

Yes, skirts are interchangeable if you find a skirt that has approximately the same style lines to go with the rest of the pattern. If a bias skirt isn't flattering to you, choose another pattern as a substitute. However, try to choose a pattern that has the same width at the hemline and one that will look equally well with the lines of the rest of your pattern. This is one of the extra bonuses that we home sewers have over those who must wear whatever the manufacturer decides.

For the booklet, "Your Pattern and You," send 25 cents and a long, 13-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I find that dresses with a waistline tend to hike up at least an inch in back. When I am making separate blouses, I simply make them longer in back and then taper to nothing at the sides and it works perfectly. How do I correct this problem when there is a waistline seam?—Mrs. B.E.W.

Dear Mrs. B.E.W.,

If you need the additional length for the back bodice only, simply add the inch you need on the entire back bodice. To adjust the front bodice so that the underarm length of both the front and back will come out the same, eliminate the dart at the underarm of the front bodice.

For those of you who have a large bust and need the extra length in front instead of back, you must add the additional length to the front bodice only. To adjust the bodice so that the front and back will be the same length at the underarm, you will need to add a dart opposite the bustline, using the amount you have added as a guide.

If your pattern already has a dart at the underarm, you must deepen it to correspond with the back bodice. You will find that with the extra size of the bust, you will need more shaping. A deeper dart will accomplish this.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Potential help for impotence

I am sending you a copy of Ann Landers' column about unfortunate males like me. I have been unable to achieve an erection for the past eight years. As a physician, will you tell me what I can do?

The root of the problem has been diagnosed as arterial insufficiency, left leg, with a partial block of the main artery to the lower part of the body where the artery bifurcates.

I am 52 years old and have had a sympathectomy to help my circulation, but it has done nothing to help with my impotence, or to relieve the pain when walking. Will you please comment on the surgical procedure that corrects impotence?

The procedure that caused the big stir originated with the urology department at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston, Tex. I have published this before.

The procedure is simply to insert two collapsible cylinders into the shaft of the organ. These are connected to a pump and a reservoir for fluid. When the pump is activated, the fluid is pumped from the reservoir into the collapsible cylinders in the shaft of the organ. Another activator pumps the fluid out of the collapsible cylinders back to the reservoir.

It is much like the normal mechanism. The way nature designed things, upon reflex stimulation nerves cause an increase in the blood flow to the organ and diminish the blood drainage, resulting in distention with blood or an erection.

You do not have to contact St. Luke's Hospital. You can contact any urologist and he should be familiar with the procedure by now. Certainly any urology department of any university medical center will be familiar with this and other procedures available for impotent men.

There are many causes of impotency. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence, for a more complete discussion. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A NUMBER OF CASES of impotence are caused by poor circulas in your case.

You need to be examined for the possibility of a bypass operation of your blocked artery. The pain in your leg along with impotence is a classic combination. In many such cases circulation to the lower part of the body and leg can be improved by putting in a bypass graft that detours the blood around the blocked area. That alone may not cure your impotence as that may involve smaller arteries that would require more detailed surgery.

Some cases of impotence are caused by abnormal function of the nerves that control the flow of blood that induces erection. Some diabetics have this problem when the diabetes damages the nerves needed for the reflex. Such men are a candidate for the operation you asked about.

The vast majority of cases of impotence are related to psychological factors. This is especially true in the younger male. Usually this is a confidence factor and the young man fails because of "fear of failure," a direct result of some of the social concepts of our culture.

Moisture conducive to growth of mold

Dear Dorothy: We live in a 50-year-old stone house and some months ago I noticed a moldy look in the corner of a first-floor bedroom wall. Had to be away and now find that this mold has spread — up to and including the ceiling. What now? — Mrs. L. F. Smith

Mildew grows anywhere it can find moisture and the right conditions for its growth. So it would seem moisture has somehow gotten into the wall. Make a solution of one gallon of hot water with one cup of household bleach and a small handful of trisodium phosphate. The combination will not only kill the mildew, but clean whatever accumulation of dust and fumes has collected. Scrub the area thoroughly with this mixture, then rinse well. Once completely dry, be sure to use mildew-resistant paint when painting the room.

Dear Dorothy: Are hen turkeys more tender than the toms? And which is better — fresh or frozen turkey? — Gwen Kimball

There is no difference in tenderness between hens and toms. I've always used frozen turkeys. Friends have sworn by the fresh, but I never thought them a bit better. Fact is that 90 per cent of all turkeys sold in the retail trade are frozen — frozen immediately after processing and chilling.

Dear Dorothy: For years now I've been told that walking is one of the best of exercises. But a diet book says one has to walk for 14 hours to lose one pound. An error? — Jane Kurtzmann

Walking is one of the best exercises. But I don't recall anyone advocating it as a weight-reducer. The reason walking is stressed is that it's ideal for proper heart muscle tone. However, I can see how daily walks could mean a weight loss over a period of time.

Friendship Club

St. James Friendship Club has a meeting planned for Tuesday afternoon in the Convent Hall, 820 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. A group of Girl Scouts and Brownies will give a program on the Bicentennial Theme.

The club is sponsoring a trip to Lake Geneva on July 14. Those attending will leave from the parish center at 8:45 a.m.

Young Single Parents

Young Single Parents of the North Shore will pay tribute to the Bicentennial Tuesday evening with a "Yankee Doodle Dandy" sing of favorite American songs. Members are asked to bring any homemade instruments such as washboards, jubs, froggy twangersuor kazoos. The group meet at 9 p.m.at the Sheraton North Shore Inn, Dundee and Edens Expressway, Northbrook.

Weddings

Kathleen Sloan Armstrong — J. R. Newgard

It was on a ski club trip to Utah two years ago that Kathleen Sloan Armstrong of Evanston and J. Richard Newgard of Schaumburg met. A romance developed and the couple were married June 5 in St. Athanasius Church, Evanston.

Kathleen is the daughter of the William S. Armstrongs and works for Stepan Chemical Co., Northfield. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Her bridegroom, son of the J. Robert Newgards of Mount Prospect, is associated with Henry Newgard Co., Arlington Heights.

THEIR 7 P.M. candlelight ceremomy was followed by a reception for 250 guests at Westmoreland Country Club. After a 10-day honeymoon which took them to New Orleans and Marco Island, Fla., the newlyweds have settled in Arlington Heights.

Kathleen's sister, Mary, was her maid of honor and Dick's brother, James, of Barrington Hills, was best man for the double ring rites. Bridesmaids included Jim's wife; the groom's sister, Mrs. Michael Noland, Palatine; Mrs. Fred Muermann, Kiel, Wis.; and Mrs. Douglas Cowley, Milwaukee.

THE ATTENDANTS were all gowned alike in light green crepe and carried starburst mums with blue cornflowers. The maid of honor wore a crown of baby's breath in her hair; the other attendants wore white picture hats.

Kathleen chose a white peau de soie gown with Alencon lace trim and a matching headpiece to hold her bouffant veil. She carried white roses.

The groom's attendants, besides the best man, were Michael Noland; James Knight, Glenview; Richard Knaack, Harvard; Ronald Ciszon, Arlington Heights; Donald Middendorf, St. Louis; and the bride's brother, Michael.

DAR chapter celebrates first July 4th

Loses 210 Pounds
Credits Conway Diet Institute

Nine months ago, Bill Deeds — 440 pounds of short breath, aching feet and innumerable health problems, started on the Conway 1000 calorie diet. Today he's 210 pounds lighter, healthier and a lot happier.
"I didn't think I could do it, because I'd failed on so many diets before," he says.
But the Conway Diet, the weekly Insight-Motivation Seminars, encouragement from his doctor, lots of support from his wife, Jane, and his own determination paid off for the smiling Bill Deeds.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Potential help for impotence

I am sending you a copy of Ann Landers' column about unfortunate males like me. I have been unable to achieve an erection for the past eight years. As a physician, will you tell me what I can do?

The root of the problem has been diagnosed as arterial insufficiency, left leg, with a partial block of the main artery to the lower part of the body where the artery bifurcates.

I am 52 years old and have had a sympathectomy to help my circulation, but it has done nothing to help with my impotence, or to relieve the pain when walking. Will you please comment on the surgical procedure that corrects impotence?

The procedure that caused the big stir originated with the urology department at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston, Tex. I have published this before.

The procedure is simply to insert two collapsible cylinders into the shaft of the organ. These are connected to a pump and a reservoir for fluid. When the pump is activated, the fluid is pumped from the reservoir into the collapsible cylinders in the shaft of the organ. Another activator pumps the fluid out of the collapsible cylinders back to the reservoir.

It is much like the normal mechanism. The way nature designed things, upon reflex stimulation nerves cause an increase in the blood flow to the organ and diminish the blood drainage, resulting in distention with blood or an erection.

You do not have to contact St. Luke's Hospital. You can contact any urologist and he should be familiar with the procedure by now. Certainly any urology department of any university medical center will be familiar with this and other procedures available for impotent men.

There are many causes of impotency. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence, for a more complete discussion. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A NUMBER OF CASES of impotence are caused by poor circulas in your case.

You need to be examined for the possibility of a bypass operation of your blocked artery. The pain in your leg along with impotence is a classic combination. In many such cases circulation to the lower part of the body and leg can be improved by putting in a bypass graft that detours the blood around the blocked area. That alone may not cure your impotence as that may involve smaller arteries that would require more detailed surgery.

Some cases of impotence are caused by abnormal function of the nerves that control the flow of blood that induces erection. Some diabetics have this problem when the diabetes damages the nerves needed for the reflex. Such men are a candidate for the operation you asked about.

The vast majority of cases of impotence are related to psychological factors. This is especially true in the younger male. Usually this is a confidence factor and the young man fails because of "fear of failure," a direct result of some of the social concepts of our culture.

Moisture conducive to growth of mold

Dear Dorothy: We live in a 50-year-old stone house and some months ago I noticed a moldy look in the corner of a first-floor bedroom wall. Had to be away and now find that this mold has spread — up to and including the ceiling. What now? — Mrs. L. F. Smith

Mildew grows anywhere it can find moisture and the right conditions for its growth. So it would seem moisture has somehow gotten into the wall. Make a solution of one gallon of hot water with one cup of household bleach and a small handful of trisodium phosphate. The combination will not only kill the mildew, but clean whatever accumulation of dust and fumes has collected. Scrub the area thoroughly with this mixture, then rinse well. Once completely dry, be sure to use mildew-resistant paint when painting the room.

Dear Dorothy: Are hen turkeys more tender than the toms? And which is better — fresh or frozen turkey? — Gwen Kimball

There is no difference in tenderness between hens and toms. I've always used frozen turkeys. Friends have sworn by the fresh, but I never thought them a bit better. Fact is that 90 per cent of all turkeys sold in the retail trade are frozen — frozen immediately after processing and chilling.

Dear Dorothy: For years now I've been told that walking is one of the best of exercises. But a diet book says one has to walk for 14 hours to lose one pound. An error? — Jane Kurtzmann

Walking is one of the best exercises. But I don't recall anyone advocating it as a weight-reducer. The reason walking is stressed is that it's ideal for proper heart muscle tone. However, I can see how daily walks could mean a weight loss over a period of time.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The group meet at 9 p.m.at the Sheraton North Shore Inn, Dundee and Edens Expressway, Northbrook.

Weddings

Kathleen Sloan Armstrong– J. R. Newgard

It was on a ski club trip to Utah two years ago that Kathleen Sloan Armstrong of Evanston and J. Richard Newgard of Schaumburg met. A romance developed and the couple were married June 5 in St. Athanasius Church, Evanston.

Kathleen is the daughter of the William S. Armstrongs and works for Stepan Chemical Co., Northfield. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Her bridegroom, son of the J. Robert Newgards of Mount Prospect, is associated with Henry Newgard Co., Arlington Heights.

THEIR 7 P.M. candlelight ceremomy was followed by a reception for 250 guests at Westmoreland Country Club. After a 10-day honeymoon which took them to New Orleans and Marco Island, Fla., the newlyweds have settled in Arlington Heights.

Kathleen's sister, Mary, was her maid of honor and Dick's brother, James, of Barrington Hills, was best man for the double ring rites. Bridesmaids included Jim's wife; the groom's sister, Mrs. Michael Noland, Palatine; Mrs. Fred Muermann, Kiel, Wis.; and Mrs. Douglas Cowley, Milwaukee.

THE ATTENDANTS were all gowned alike in light green crepe and carried starburst mums with blue cornflowers. The maid of honor wore a crown of baby's breath in her hair; the other attendants wore white picture hats.

Kathleen chose a white peau de soie gown with Alencon lace trim and a matching headpiece to hold her bouffant veil. She carried white roses.

The groom's attendants, besides the best man, were Michael Noland; James Knight, Glenview; Richard Knaack, Harvard; Ronald Ciszon, Arlington Heights; Donald Middendorf, St. Louis; and the bride's brother, Michael.

Man perils peaceful orangutan

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Lisa and Linda Smith, 9, of Huntsville, Ala., for their question: IS THE ORANGUTAN AN ENDANGERED ANIMAL?

The somber-looking orangutan dwells in the treetops of Sumatra and Borneo. His favorite food is tropical fruit, especially the durian — a large oval-shaped fruit with a prickly skin and the fragrance of limburger cheese. At night the orangutan builds himself a nest of boughs and vines and sleeps high above the forest floor. During the rainy season a coverlet of leaves is his only protection against the dripping wet environment.

Yes, the orangutan is an endangered animal. His range has been reduced during the years following World War II until now he is found only in certain parts of Sumatra and Borneo. Reliable estimates place the total orangutan population at approximately 5,000 individuals, and about 500 of these are in zoos.

The orangutan is a large-peaceful, slow-moving ape who spends most of his life in the treetops. Adult males are about 4½ feet tall and can weigh a hefty 200 pounds. The females are generally much smaller. The orangutan's body is covered with a shaggy coat of brick-red hair, and his almost human face seems to wear a perpetual mournful expression.

When on the ground the orangutan moves in an awkward and ungainly fashion. In the treetops of the luxuriant forests where he lives, however, it is a different story. He never leaps or springs about like so many of his smaller cousins. Let's face it, even a sturdy branch would snap if a 200-pound individual suddenly dropped onto it. The orangutan prefers to move through the upper canopy in a much more calm and deliberate manner — testing each branch before putting his full weight down.

In the wild, the orangutan has few natural enemies. Sad to say, his population decline is due to man. And widespread destruction of the orangutan's natural habitat for the valuable timber found there is probably the chief cause. The orangutan does not adapt to new locations easily, and as his lowland habitats are destroyed he is forced to move up into the mountains, which are unsuitable adobes for a number of reasons.

Equally serious is the problem of the illegal trade in young orangutans that are often taken from their mothers and sold to animal dealers. The mothers are often shot. This is both tragic and illegal, and steps have been taken by the leaders for the world's zoos to halt this senseless practice. Many zoos are reporting more success in breeding captive orangutans, which is encouraging. However, the real salvation of the orangutan lies in establishing sanctuaries where they can live as they have in years past.

Young orangutans are delicate animals who seem to fall victim to lung diseases carried by man. Many of the young, after being captured in the wild, are kept in unsanitary conditions and fed an unnatural diet. As a result many of them die from infections and malnutrition. Adult orangutans do not live as long in captivity as they would in the wild.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Jackie Mounier, age 10, of Vander Wagon, N.M., for her questions: HOW DOES A SHEEP PRODUCE WOOL?

The beautiful wools we use to make clothing come from the fleecy coats of sheep. Soft, fluffy lamb's wool comes from the to 12-month-old lamb, and wool from young sheep over a year old is called hogg, or hogget. There are many types of sheep, and their coats yield wool of varying quality and amount. A Spanish Merino sheep is considered to have the finest and largest amounts of wool, often totaling 28 pounds in just one shearing.

A typical sheep will be sheared once a year in the spring. An expert shearer using power-driven equipment can shear up to 15 to 20 sheep in an hour. The fleece, removed if possible in one piece, varies in grade, the best coming from the shoulders and sides. After a sorter separates the wool according to quality, the wool is scoured thoroughly to free it of dirt and grease. After being sheared, the sheep returns to the herd to graze on grasses for another year. During this time the coat grows out again nice and thick to keep him warm throughout the cold winter months. The average sheep lives about 13 years.

A hand for Hamlet?

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Oswald: "If Hamlet had played bridge he might well have soliloquized, 'To finesse or not to finesse? That is the question.' "

Jim: "If he were playing today's hand in a rubber bridge game, he would find a quick answer and go right up with dummy's ace. Then he would draw trumps, throw the defenders in with a heart or a club, watch them take two clubs and the king of hearts and then spread his hand to claim the balance of the tricks since the defender on lead would have to lead a diamond or give him a ruff and discard."

Oswald: "In match-point duplicate declarer might decide to try the finesse. If it worked he would be sure of an overtrick and a good match-point score. If it failed he would still have a chance to find the queen of diamonds and make his contract."

Jim: "I think most match-point declarers would do this. They all think they guess well and they all love overtricks."

Why not save for sunny days too

In today's changing world and economy, you hear a lot about the uncertainties of the future and the need to put something aside for emergencies. This is nothing new—saving for a rainy day is an old tradition and is the reason why many people already save.

Perhaps then, it's time that we gave some thought to the sunny days in our lives.

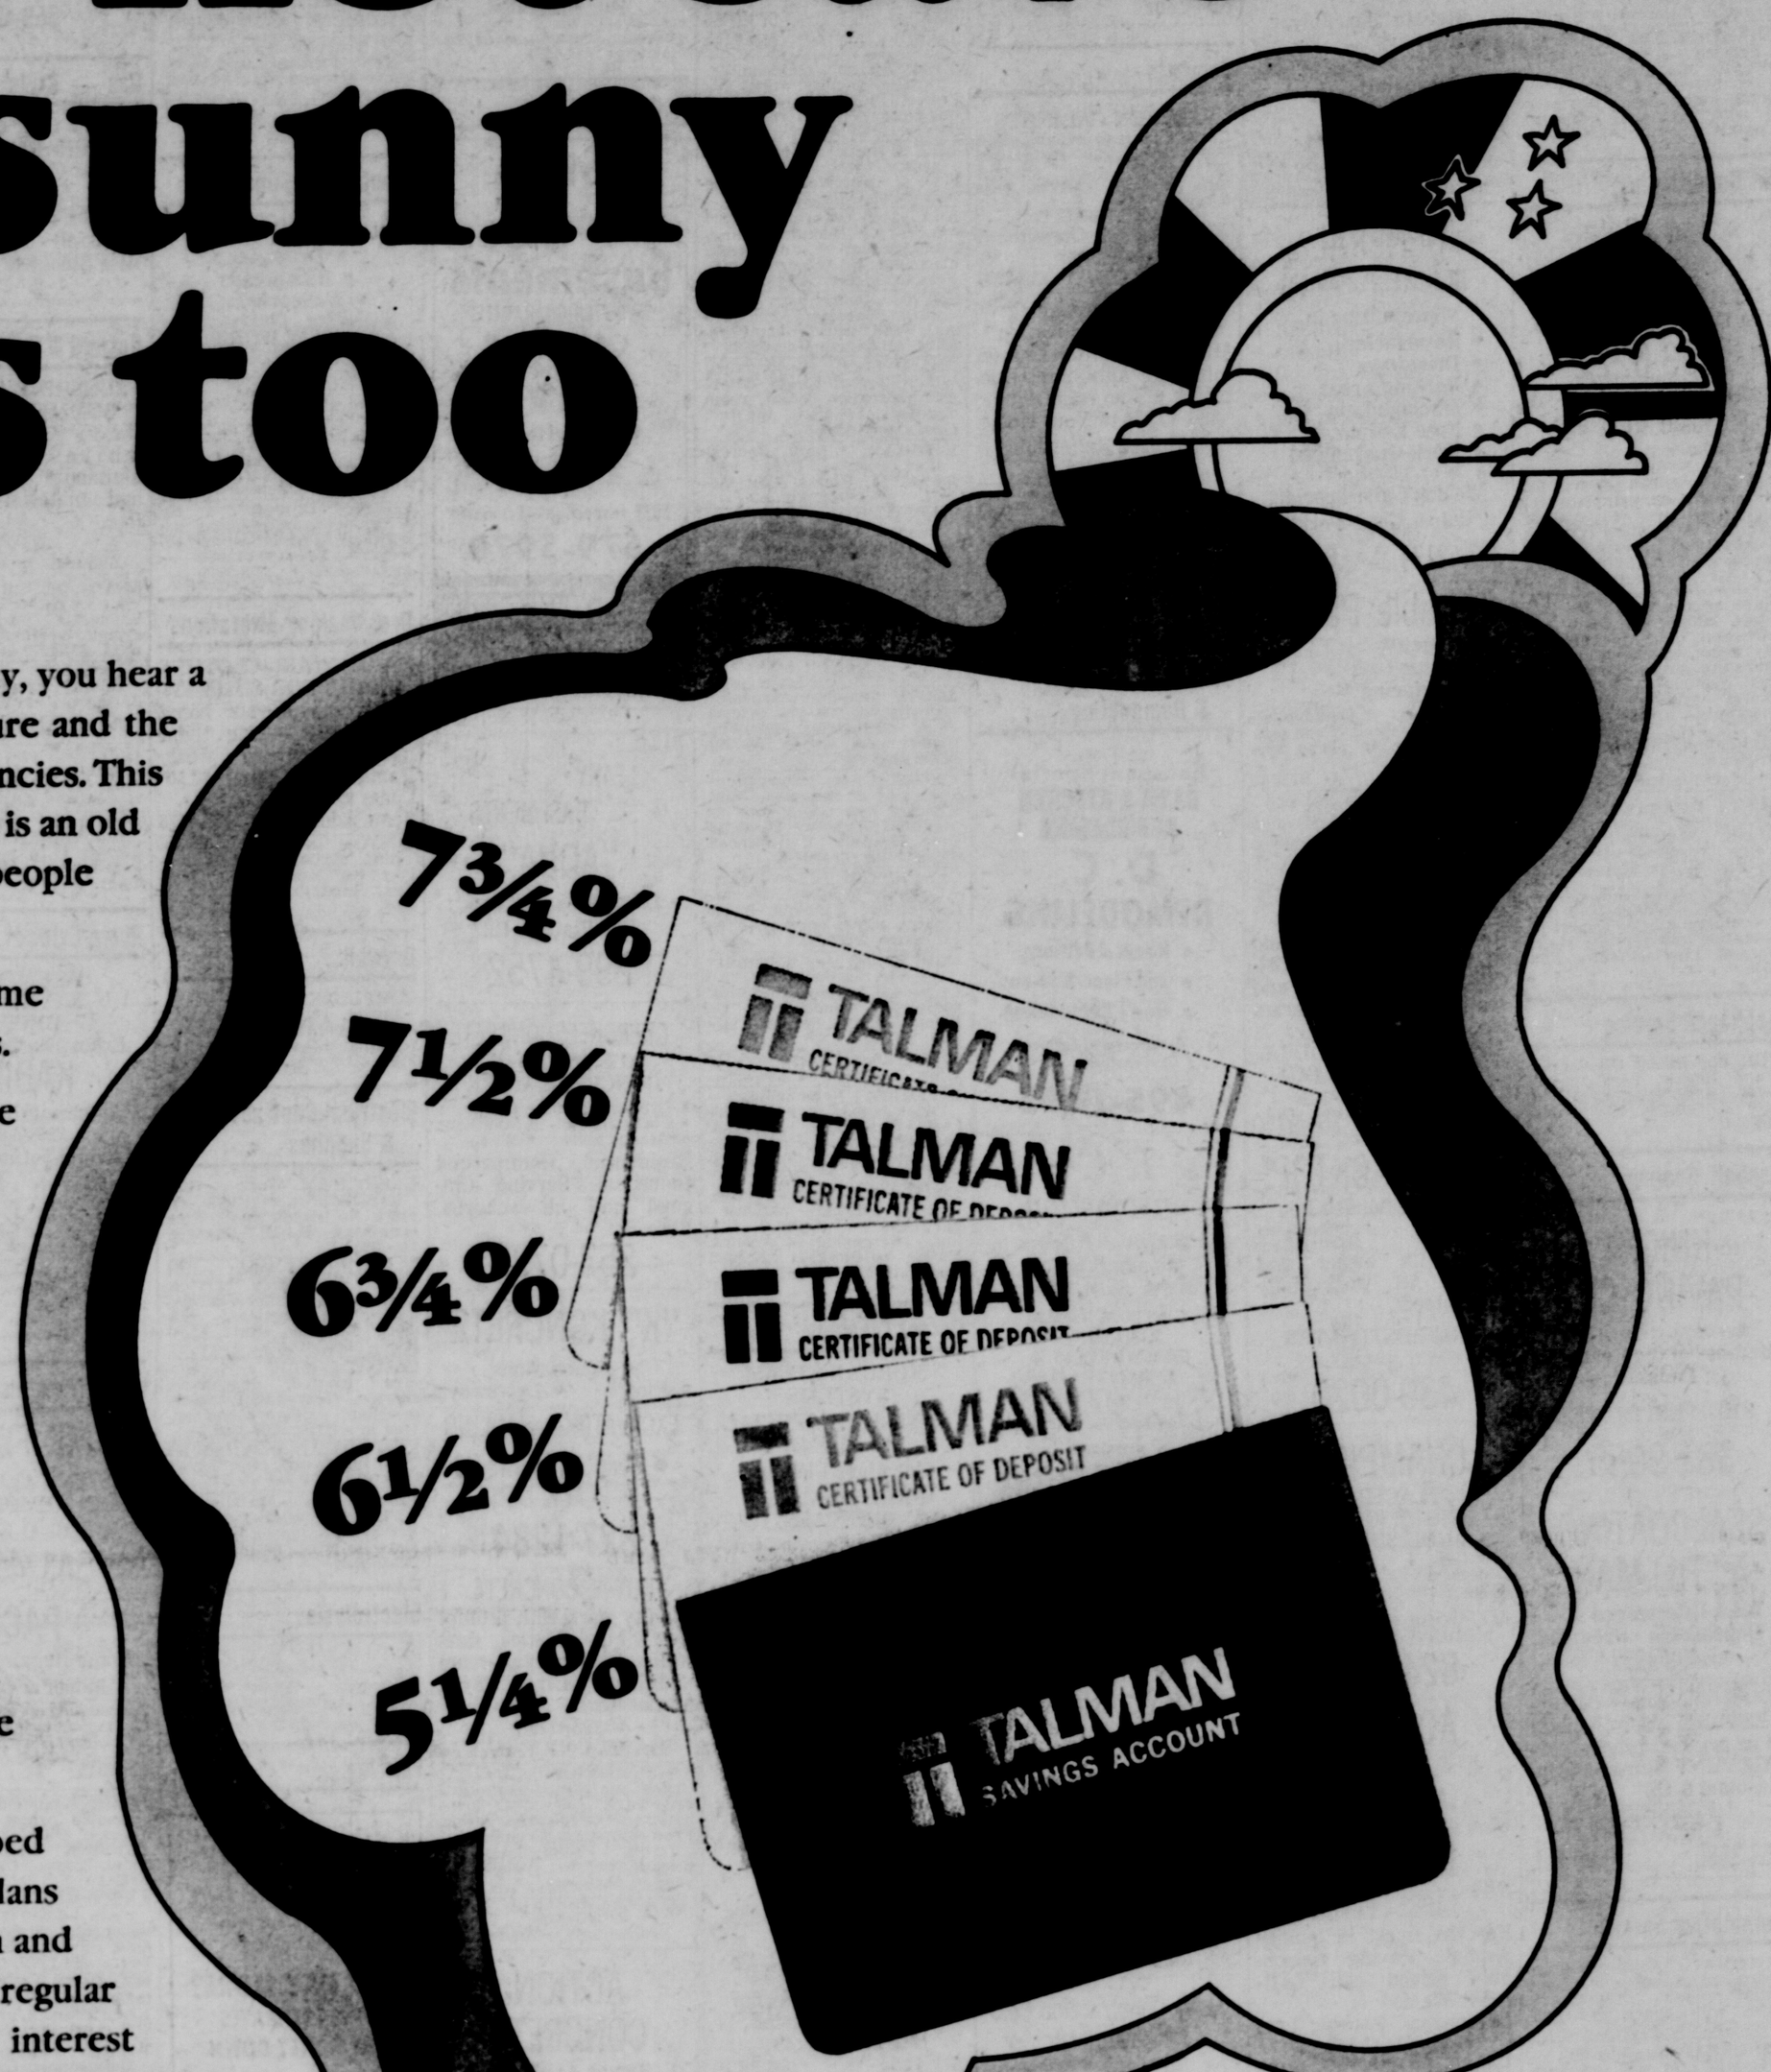

At Talman, we encourage people to save for the good days too. Most of us dream of a more enjoyable, trouble-free life. Most of us make plans for the future. Your plan might be to own your own home, to educate your children, to get ready for your retirement, or to travel or improve your standard of living through some major purchase.

Whatever your dreams, whatever your plans, in most cases savings can make them realities. And the knowledge that you are preparing for them can make life more enjoyable day by day.

For over 54 years now, Talman has helped individuals and families set up savings plans to fit their particular financial situation and future expectations. We have seen that regular saving combined with Talman's high interest rates has helped many people to reach their personal goals and achieve the peace of mind that comes with freedom from financial worries. Often this makes the difference between a rainy day and a sunny day.

Today, it is more profitable and convenient than ever for you to save at Talman. Our interest rates are the highest allowed by law. And there are now eight Talman offices throughout metropolitan Chicagoland at which our trained savings counselors can help you choose the savings plan that is best for you.

Once you start a regular savings program at Talman, it's predictable that there will be more sun than rain in your future.

Why not save for sunny days too

In today's changing world and economy, you hear a lot about the uncertainties of the future and the need to put something aside for emergencies. This is nothing new—saving for a rainy day is an old tradition and is the reason why many people already save.

Perhaps then, it's time that we gave some thought to the sunny days in our lives.

At Talman, we encourage people to save for the good days too. Most of us dream of a more enjoyable, trouble-free life. Most of us make plans for the future. Your plan might be to own your own home, to educate your children, to get ready for your retirement, or to travel or improve your standard of living through some major purchase.

Whatever your dreams, whatever your plans, in most cases savings can make them realities. And the knowledge that you are preparing for them can make life more enjoyable day by day.

For over 54 years now, Talman has helped individuals and families set up savings plans to fit their particular financial situation and future expectations. We have seen that regular saving combined with Talman's high interest rates has helped many people to reach their personal goals and achieve the peace of mind that comes with freedom from financial worries. Often this makes the difference between a rainy day and a sunny day.

Today, it is more profitable and convenient than ever for you to save at Talman. Our interest rates are the highest allowed by law. And there are now eight Talman offices throughout metropolitan Chicagoland at which our trained savings counselors can help you choose the savings plan that is best for you.

Once you start a regular savings program at Talman, it's predictable that there will be more sun than rain in your future.

Data Processing

Systems Analyst-Programmer

Due to growth in our systems operations, several positions have opened up offering interesting and productive challenges which, when completed, greatly benefit our businesses. If you have COBOL experience, you're the person we seek.

The successful candidate will program and implement business systems applications in the areas of purchasing, accounts payable, and order processing, also will be involved in the survey and analysis of business operations and will determine specifications for computer systems development. A minimum 2 years COBOL experience is required in a manufacturing environment; of course, additional experience levels is a definite plus. Manufacturing applications and programming experience is mandatory.

A good knowledge of business organization and function of its major components is required along with a knowledge of the EDP systems development process and basic steps leading to and following programming activities.

These positions offer above average incomes and include comprehensive benefits. If you can apply your abilities and dedication in a receptive, newly established area, we invite you to apply. Send your confidential resume, including salary requirements to:

Data Processing

Systems Analyst-Programmer

Due to growth in our systems operations, several positions have opened up offering interesting and productive challenges which, when completed, greatly benefit our businesses. If you have COBOL experience, you're the person we seek.

The successful candidate will program and implement business systems applications in the areas of purchasing, accounts payable, and order processing, also will be involved in the survey and analysis of business operations and will determine specifications for computer systems development. A minimum 2 years COBOL experience is required in a manufacturing environment; of course, additional experience levels is a definite plus. Manufacturing applications and programming experience is mandatory.

A good knowledge of business organization and function of its major components is required along with a knowledge of the EDP systems development process and basic steps leading to and following programming activities.

These positions offer above average incomes and include comprehensive benefits. If you can apply your abilities and dedication in a receptive, newly established area, we invite you to apply. Send your confidential resume, including salary requirements to:

Legal Notice

Please take notice that on Tuesday, July 20, 1976 at 8:00 p.m., at the Municipal Building, 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois, the President and Board of Trustees of the Village will conduct a public hearing on an Annexation Agreement between the Village and the Alliance Service Corporation to annex the following described 80.0 acres to the Village of Elk Grove Village as R-3 Single Family Residential as reflected on the Official Map and to amend the Comprehensive Plan and Official Map and to reflect the extension of Biesterfield Road between Rohlwing Road and Meacham Road.

The 80 acre tract is located west of Rohlwing Road, east of Grissom Trail and south of White Trail.

LEGAL DESCRIPTION

East ½ of the North East ¼ in Section 36, Township 41 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian except the property described as Follows: South 795 feet of the North 1855 feet (as measured along the East line) of the East ½ of the North East ¼ in Section 36, Township 41 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

and

The South 795 feet of the North 1855 feet (as measured along the East line) of the East ½ of the North East ¼ in Section 36, Township 41 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

The terms of the Annexation Agreement to be considered at the public hearing are predicated on the desire of the Owner to have the tract annexed to the Village and developed upon certain terms and conditions:

A. The Owner shall:

1. Donate land equal to 10% of the land area of the subject property, net of public roads and wet storm water retention basins for public land purposes.

2. Pay to the Village the sum of $36,677.50 for the "Municipal Purpose - Traffic Signal Fund."

3. Have the right to make connections to existing Village water mains without tap-on fees.

4. Develop the property for single family detached housing units in conformity with a final plat of subdivision which meets the provisions of the Subdivision Control and other Ordinances of the Village.

B. The Village shall:

1. Enact ordinance annexing the property upon the terms and conditions set forth in the agreement.

2. Enact an ordinance classifying the property as R-3 Residential District as reflected on the Official Map of the Village.

3. Permit development of the property substantially in accordance with a site plan dated June 29, 1976.

4. Reserve the right to amend its ordinances and codes affecting the development of the subject property.

5. (A) Allow the Owner to connect to the existing Village sanitary sewer which connects into the Section 21 Centex sewer. It is agreed that the sanitary sewer has sufficient capacity to accommodate sewage generated from the Owner's property.

(B) Enter into a recapture agreement for a term of fifteen (15) years with the Owner in the event the Owner bears any part of the costs for extending or oversizing the sanitary sewer lines beyond the property in order to connect to the Village sewer which connects to the Centex sewer. Recapture, computed on a dwelling unit basis, will be from property Owners outside of the Village who benefit by the extension or oversizing.

6. Enter into a recapture agreement with the Owner in the event the Owner is required to extend or oversize public utilities beyond that which is necessary to serve the subject property. Recapture for the purpose would be fifteen (15) years.

The Agreement further provides:

1. Separability of terms of the agreement in the event of the invalidity of any singular provision.

2. The disconnection of the property as remedy in the event of a break of the agreement.

3. That it shall be effective for a period of ten (10) years.

All persons interested in this matter are welcome to attend and be heard at the public hearing to be held at the Municipal Building, 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois, on Tuesday July 20, 1976 at 8:00 p.m. Documents filed in connection with this matter may be inspected during regular office hours in the office of the Village Clerk.

HERALD WANT ADS ARE REAL STOPPERS!

HERALD WANT ADS SIX DAYS A WEEK FOR EVERYBODY!

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY was joined by millions of Americans, including President Ford and vice president Rockefeller Sunday during the nation's biggest birthday celebration — an armada of naval ships and sailing vessels from across the world.

Jubilation—from sea to shining sea

THE LARGEST pyrotechnic display in Nevada, a 35-by-50 foot reenactment of John Hancock signing the Declaration of Independence was touched off at midnight July 4 on the second story pool deck of the Union Plaza Hotel in downtown Las Vegas to commemorate the Bicentennial.

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Ford joined 7 million other Americans Sunday watching the giant ship parade in New York Harbor called the event "an escort of special grace and beauty" for the nation's Bicentennial.

The New York stop was Ford's third of the day. Earlier, he visited Valley Forge, Pa., and Philadelphia, telling a crowd of 100,000 jammed between Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell that the world is watching because "the United States remains the most successful realization of humanity's universal hope."

About 105,000 people were grouped in Philadelphia while Ford spoke on a platform in front of Independence Hall. It was a solemn crowd, quiet as Ford spoke. Mayor Frank Rizzo ordered tight security, and police were stationed every few feet. There were no incidents.

In Philadelphia, Ford noted the Declaration and the Constitution were written in Independence Hall, and said those documents "continue to supply the moral and the intellectual power for the American adventure in self government."

"Before me is the great bronze bell that joyously rang out the news of the birth of our nation from the steeple of this state house," Ford said.

"The American Revolution was unique, and remained unique in that it was fought in the name of law as well as liberty," Ford said, its purpose "to secure the rights of individuals against even government itself."

"Liberty is a living flame to be fed, not dead ashes to be revered, even in the Bicentennial year," the President said, adding it was fitting to look to the nation's third century and ask "hard questions."

"There is still so much to be done," Ford said, ". . . increase the independence of the individual, ensure a right to privacy and create a more beautiful America."

"We must develop a safer society without fear of crime. Build a more stable international order, improve health and conquer disease . . . to enrich the quality of American Life at work play and in our homes."

At Valley Forge, Ford stood in a knoll where Washington and 11,000 colonists fought to turn the tide against the British at the cost of 3,000 lives.

"Independence has to be defended as well as declared," Ford told 15,000 spectators. "Freedom is always worth fighting for and liberty ultimately belongs only to those willing to suffer for it.

"If we remember this, we can bring health where there is now disease; peace where there is strife; and progress where there is poverty and want."

WITH A HUGE 30 by 58-foot American Flag as a backdrop, 7,141 aliens take the oath of allegiance and become United States citizens. The ceremony, reportedly the largest number ever sworn in as citizens took place in Miami Beach convention hall Sunday.

At Valley Forge, Ford stood in a knoll where Washington and 11,000 colonists fought to turn the tide against the British at the cost of 3,000 lives.

"Independence has to be defended as well as declared," Ford told 15,000 spectators. "Freedom is always worth fighting for and liberty ultimately belongs only to those willing to suffer for it.

"If we remember this, we can bring health where there is now disease; peace where there is strife; and progress where there is poverty and want."

Communities take initiative in fighting vandalism

by JOHN MAES
and DAVE IBATA
Second of two parts

That monster known as vandalism is flexing its summertime muscles once again and leaving its calling card all over the Northwest suburbs in the form of broken windows, flattened tires and spray-painted walls.

In a usual warm-weather fury, the beast has ravaged homes, schools, parks and even churches, leaving area authorities to predict year-end damage figures will reach record high.

But this year, police, municipal officials and citizens' groups are responding with a little toughness of their own in an effort to curb the onslaught.

AS PART OF the fight, a number of area villages are considering a model ordinance that would "decriminalize" vandalism and impose fines rather than criminal prosecution for confiction and make parents responsible for damages.

Last month, at a meeting of representatives of several North and Northwest suburbs in Northbrook, officials said the decriminalization will allow surer and swifter prosecution of vandals.

But while municipal officials are eyeing ordinances, some area police departments have declared all-out war on vandalism, including Mount Prospect, where Police Chief Ralph J. Doney is taking special steps this summer to try to deter the crime.

"Even though it's a 12-month-a-year problem it's the number one crime in Mount Prospect if not in the suburbs over-all."

IN ADDITION to having deployed special tactical units of police who will look for nothing but vandalism during summer months, private citizens also will be getting into the act.

Doney said a group of residents will patrol streets in cars watching for crime and alerting police through the use of Citizens' Band radios.

The program, called STOP-ALERT, was started this year in response to the growing vandalism problem in the village.

Also, curfew is being "strictly enforced," in Mount Prospect this summer. Experience shows curfew violators are most likely to commit vandalism, he said.

Another police department enlisting citizen support is Wheeling, where Police Chief M. O. (Syke) Horcher is concerned the crime will show an even steeper increase than usual this summer with summer school closings.

He said however, "we're fortunate, it's not as severe here as in other areas."

"But we're working now with a particular program we hope will help deter vandalism using the eyes and ears of Citizen-Band radio clubs," said Horcher.

UNDER THE PROGRAM, participants will call police direct over Citizens-Band units when they see vandalism. Police will then dispatch a squad car to the scene.

An old Civil Defense radio unit is being used to monitor the calls.

Horcher also said he hopes to make use of another group, called the Catter Box Club, a Skokie-based outfit that has its own plan and radio code system for reporting crimes to police.

"I think it's going to have a great bearing as soon as we get enough people. And the benefits are going to be tremendous," he said.

Through the Des Plaines Police Dept. Officer Friendly program, patrolmen this summer will talk to local groups and organizations to urge residents to report vandalism.

"We have the police out there and we're just asking the people to take an active interest in their own neighborhoods," Sgt. Robert Sturlini said.

In Arlington Heights, the police crime prevention unit aims to cut down vandalism by educating the public and working with community groups. It too has set up a CB radio monitor — the Neighborhood Watch, in which residents use CB radios and telephones to alert police of suspecicious activity.

The Arlington Heights police speaker's bureau gives vandalism prevention talks to community organizations.

Police work with the Arlington Heights Zero Vandalism Committee to coordinate anti-vandalism efforts. The village, on a recommendation by the committee, recently directed that police begin enforcing curfew laws.

PALATINE POLICE are preparing a program on vandalism prevention to present before school children. The audio-visual presentation will teach youths to respect other peoples' property, said Chief Jerry Bratcher.

Palatine also has had its own Neighborhood Watch Program since 1974, one of the first in the Northwest suburbs and a model program for other communities.

And while vandalism elsewhere has increased in recent years, in fiscal 1974-75 Palatine experienced a 17 per cent decline in vandalism, Bratcher said. "It's initially encouraging," he said.

Rolling Meadows police also visit schools, and have employed a unique — and effective — educational tool. Mock trials have been staged to show children what the apprehended vandal faces when brought to justice.

HOFFMAN ESTATES police have participated in a Chec-Mate program, in which a citizen is assigned a number that can be given to police when a complaint is made. Citizens thus may remain anonymous when reporting acts of vandalism.

Citizens in the south section of the village in June took action themselves and formed a night watch patrol. Teams of two persons each walk the streets to ward off vandals and thieves.

Youth officers in Schaumburg work with children in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 elementary and junior high schools, talking with children and their parents. Schaumburg police also schedule speakers for neighborhood organizations.

A police consultant in High School Dist. 211 works with teens in seminars and classes to explain what sort of burden vandalism becomes, especially to tax-paying residents who must foot the bill for damage to village property and increased police patrols, says Chief Martin Conroy.

Dist. 211 last October established a fund into which each student in the district's five high schools would pay $1. The $10,000 collected goes to repair vandalized school property, and money remaining at the end of the school year is used by students for a class project.

Conroy also called for citizens to report crime to police and be ready to testify in court against vandals. "We need the cooperation of our citizens," he said. "Too many times, people do not want to call us because they do not want to get involved."

Firm provided free outings to U.S. personnel

by LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Aerojet General Corp. provided free transportation, food, drink and lodging to Air Force officers and civilians responsible for granting government contracts, it was learned Sunday.

The outings included rides on corporate jets to football games in California, where Aerojet also paid for game tickets and related expenses.

The Defense Dept. said it discovered in March that at least two Air Force officers had accepted favors from Aerojet, maker of rocket engines.

"These allegations came to our attention during our continued inquiry into the standards of conduct of Dept. of Defense personnel," a Pentagon spokesman said.

Besides the military officers, civilian employes of the federal government also accepted favors from the corporation. The Pentagon said none of its civilian employes was under investigation.

THE CIVILIANS from executive agencies of the government reportedly included officials of the Atomic Energy Commission, which was reorganized into the Energy Research and Development Administration two years ago.

An ERDA spokesman said he was not aware of any irregularities involving agency personnel or any investigation to uncover problems. "We've had a clean slate," he said.

Aerojet, of El Monte, Calif., is an affiliate of the General Tire and Rubber Co. It is a major manufacturer of solid and liquid propellent motors and was the defense contractor that built rocket engines for the Minuteman and Titan Missiles.

It won a long-term contract in the early 1970s to operate the AEC's National Reactor Station at Idaho Falls, Idaho.

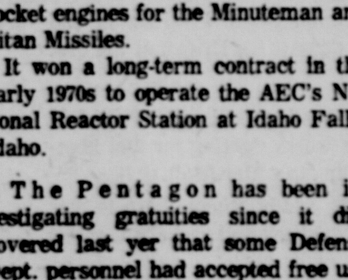

The Pentagon has been investigating gratuities since it discovered last yer that some Defense Dept. personnel had accepted free use of hunting lodges leased by defense contractors.

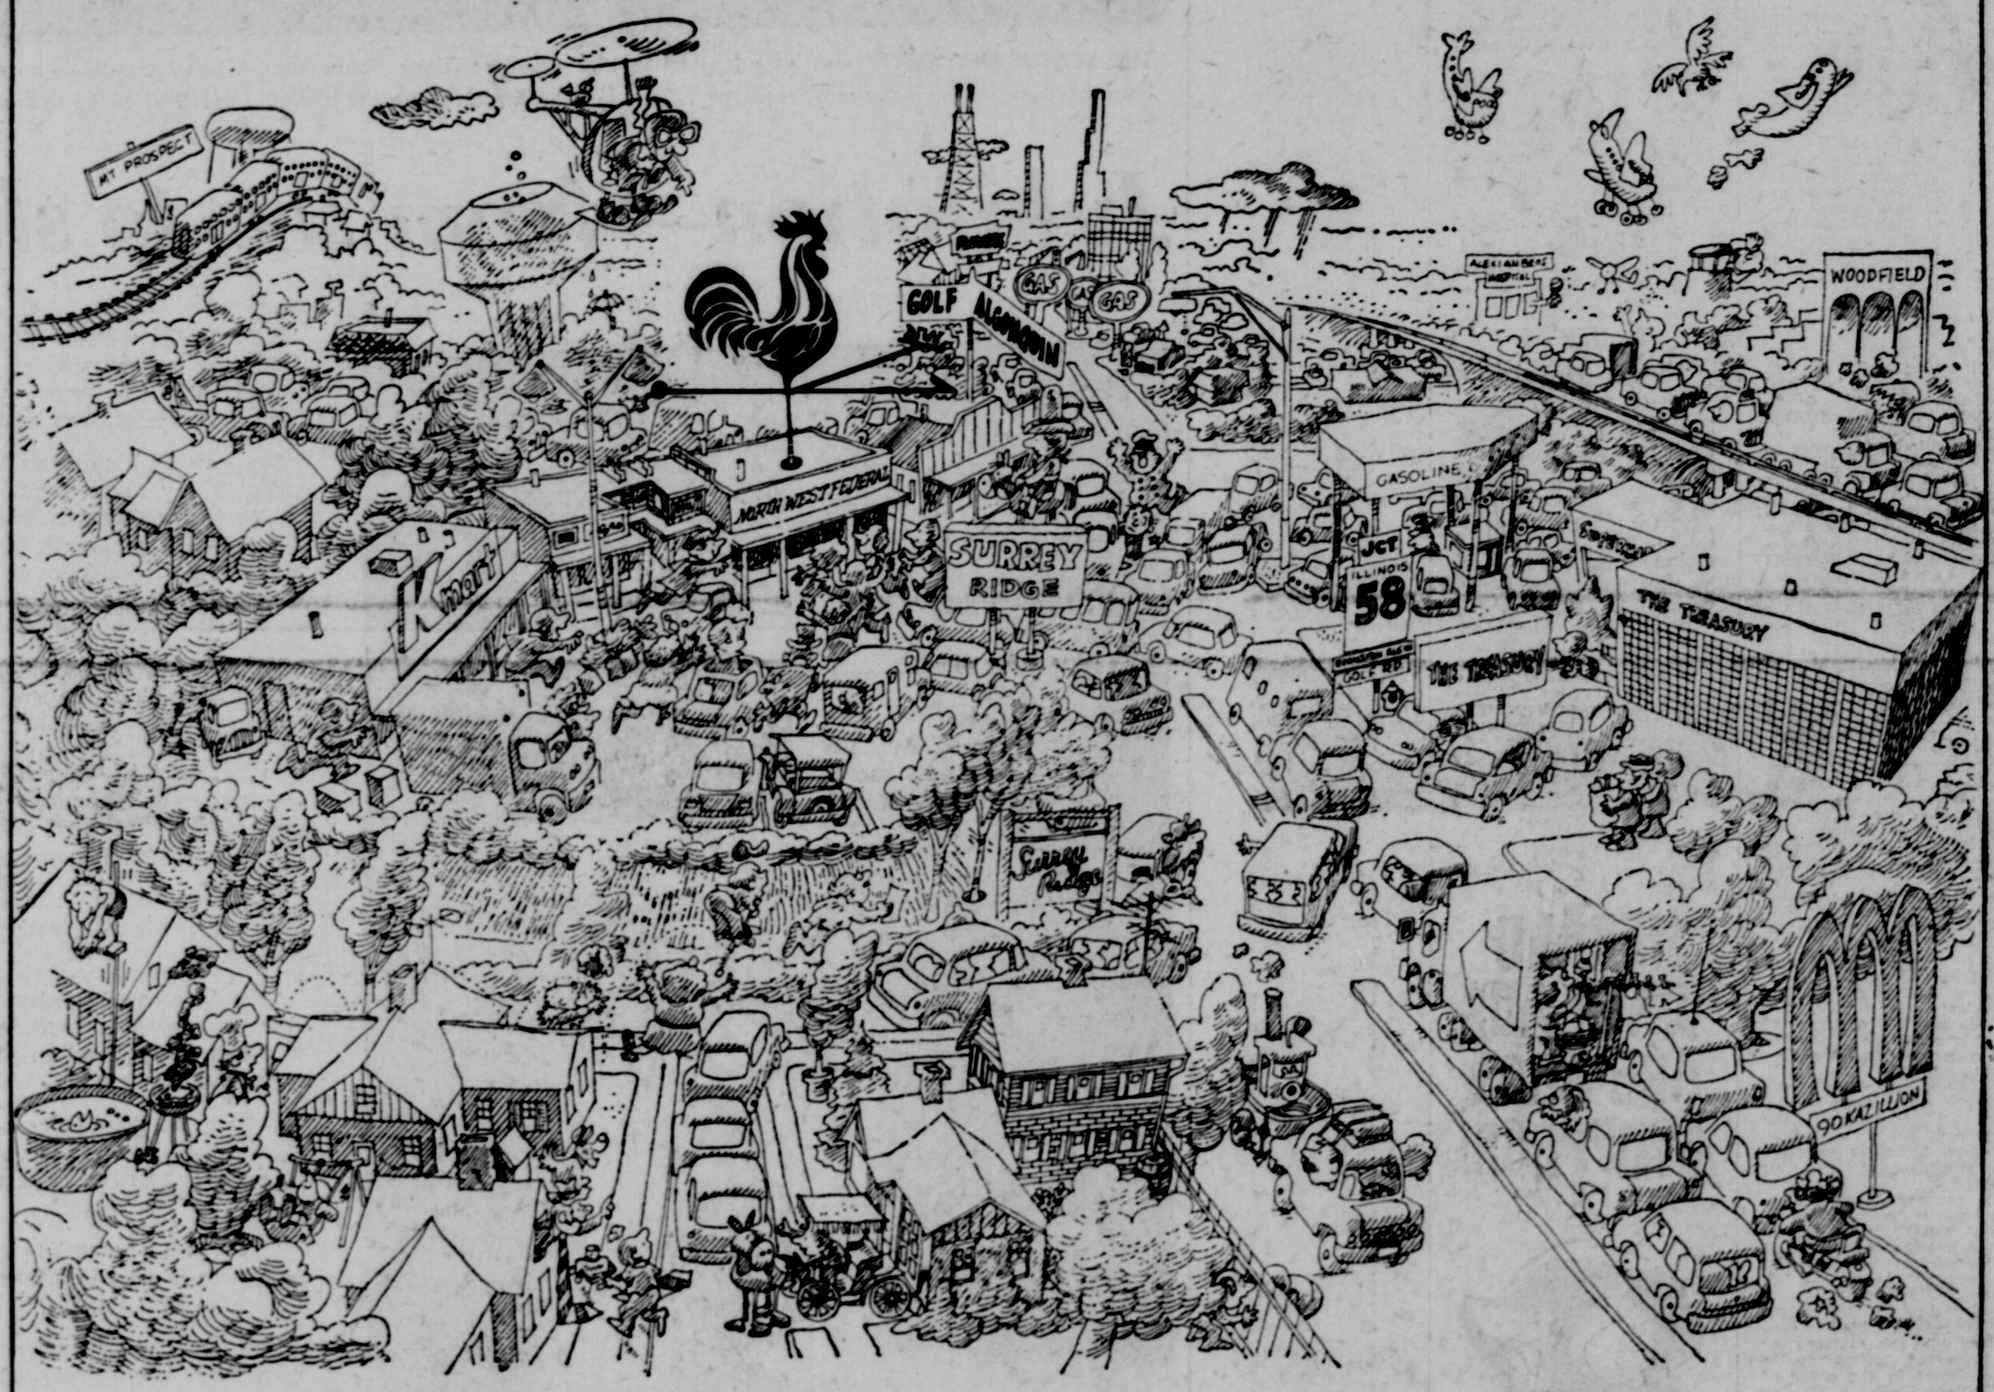

A Defense spokesman had been delayed until the department could develop administrative procedures for dealing with conflicts of interest.

HEROJET CONSENTED May 10 to federal charges of allegedly maintaining a slush fund, making foreign payoffs and illegal campaign contributions to U.S. politicians.

Charges by the Securities and Exchange Commission alleged General Tire "conferred numerous gratuities and other benefits to military officers and civilian employes of executive agencies of the United States with whom General Tire had or has contracts and arrangements.

The SEC said the "benefits included the utilization of corporate aircraft of General Tire and the payment of various miscellaneous expenses of government employes."

Deford's book on 'Big Bill Tilden' fills a void

Jim Murray

He was America's greatest sports embarrassment. He towered above his sport the way Ruth, Dempsey, Bobby Jones or Red Grange did. But he stigmatized it, and it took it decades to outlive the mocking imprimatur he left on it.

The day the Associated Press poll named him the Athlete of the Half Century in his sport by a wider margin than even Ruth, Demopsey, Jones or Grange got in theirs, he was being discharged from prison.

He had been received by royalty, was a confidant of the great. But he was shunned by thieves, murderers, rapists and embezlers zlers in his last years.

Big Bill Tilden may have been the greatest tennis player who ever lived. Joe DeMaggio hit in 56 consecutive baseball games. John Unitas passed for a touchdown in 47 consecutive games. But Big Bill Tilden once ran off 50 consecutive winning games of tennis. In a sport in which a server has a mammoth advantage, to break an opponent's serve something like 30 times in a row in championship tennis is incredible. The run had to include nearly ten 6-0 sets in a row.

Tilden's story is told in a new book "Big Bill Tilden" by Frank DeFord (Simon & Schuster). It fills a void. Tilden was the forgotten man of sport. Tilden had no problems with opponents on tennis courts. His problems were with ball boys. Poor Bill was a closet queen.

No man ever dominated his sport the way Tilden did. He won Wimbledon three times (some years he didn't bother to defend his championship there). He won Forest Hills six years in a row. During his great years, the Davis Cup was as secure for America as Ft. Knox.

Still, not a single tournament, stadium, ball, racquet, shirt, slack or sweater is named for Big Bill Tilden. The city of Philadelphia gave him the Box Award, the highest civic award one year — and took his portrait down from the Germantown Cricket Club walls the next. Yet, every guy who ever sold or swung a racquet owes a great deal to Bill Tilden.

The phrase "cannonball serve" was first used to describe Tilden's serve, but he was an all-court clayer, a tactician, a gamesman, and an artist. He made pro tennis, and he was winning sets from players 30 years his junior almost until his death.

Tennis was tolerant of his proclivities but the LAPD double-faulted him, and the courts sent him to jail twice.

He had been lionized by the Hollywood social set when he came out here as champion. But, at the end, only Charlie Chaplin, Joseph Cotten and one or two others didn't begin to cross the street when they saw him coming.

He played a set of tennis with the horseman, and Chaplin crony, Tim Durant, the day he died, and Tim remembers once offering to throw Tilden off the court one day when Chaplin wanted to play and Tilden was monopolizing the facility. "No, don't do that. He's a genius," said Chaplin slowly. "And I know what that's like."

Genius or menace, Tilden's last years were Greek tragedy. Alone, unwashed, living in a cluttered Hollywood apartment, humiliated, shadowed by policemen, he was a pathetic cry from the laundered white-shirt giant who performed before the queen, partnered with Chaplin, David Selznick and Douglas Fairbanks, and thrilled the world.

His trophies were locked in a steamer truck, his pupils were municipal court mediocrities, and his picture was printed only on police blotters at the last. When he died, Tim Durant remembers that the only representative from the world of ternis was Pancho Segura. Joseph Cotten had to buy the sweater and suede coat they laid him in for the services. He had $6 in Automobile Club refund on him when he was found dead in bed. There were no wreaths from Wimbledon, Forest Hills, the USLTA.

Tennis wanted to forget him. But no one who ever saw him play ever could. He wrote the best book on tennis ever written. (When the Australian, John Newcombe, was asked how he learned the game, he replied in some surprise "Reading Bill Tilden's book — didn't everybody?")

Deford's book is an effort to revive his accomplishments, not his disgraces. It is a shame for a great champion to be remembered only for a pair of sordid instances of his dotage.

Sox split one-run contests with Texas

From Herald Wire Services

The White Sox split with the Texas Rangers Sunday, winning the opener 7-6 in 12 innings before losing the second game, 3-2.

Jorge Orta's 12th-inning single drove in Bucky Dent with the winning run in the opening game. Bill Stein opened the inning with a double and, one out later, Dent grounded to short, where Toby Harrah booted the ball for an error.

Stein was out at home when Chet Lemon hit into a fielder's choice, but Orta followed with his eighth game-winning hit of the season off loser Mike Bacsik.

Dave Hamilton, 4-4, pitched the last three innings to earn the win. The sox tied the score at six with two out in the bottom of the ninh when Kevin Bell's infield single just beyond second base scored Orta.

Jim Sundberg's double in the eighth gave the Rangers a 6-5 lead after they trailed 3-0 early in the game.

In the second game, the Sox scored two runs in the eighth after spotting the Rangers with a 3-0 lead.

Bill Fahey's two-run single in the eighth gave the Rangers a 3-0 lead. It came off Sox' starter Chris Knapp, making only his second major league start.

Knapp almost got out of the jam after loading the bases with no one out in the eighth. He got the next batter to hit a popout and then struck out Juan Beniquez before Fahey delivered his single.

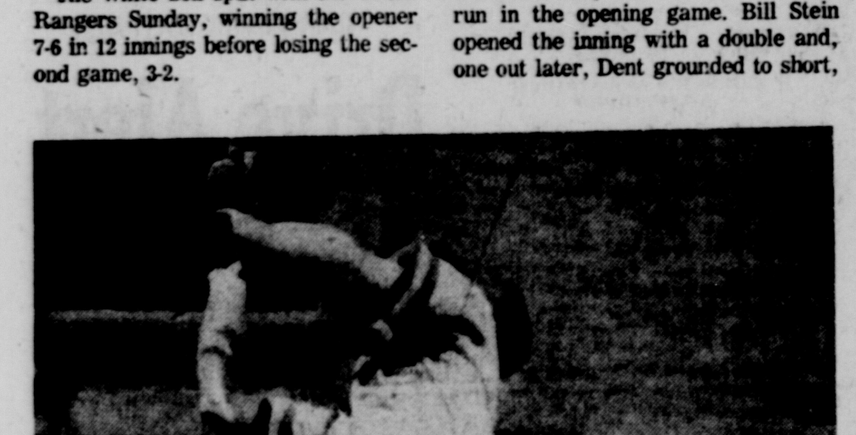

He gave up 10 hits in the eight innings he worked. Texas starter Steve Hargan, with relief help from Hoerner, picked up his third win in five decisions. Hoener earned his sixth save.

Brian Downing led off the Chicago eighth with a double and scored on a single by Lemon.

Lemon took second on a wild pitch by Hargan and scored on a single by Orta. Hoerner came in and got Pat Kelly to fly out and Dent to strike out to end the rally.

The Sox are now 12-12 in one-run contests.

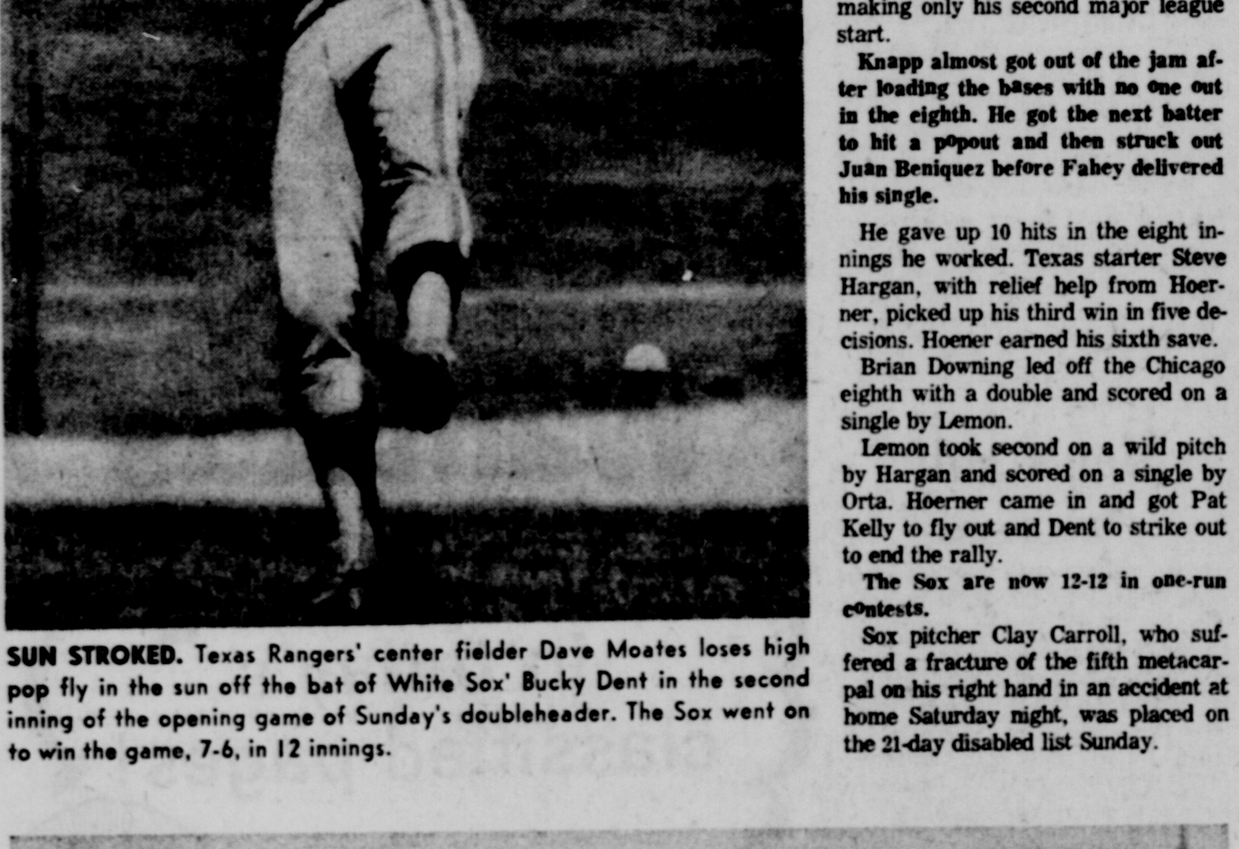

Sox pitcher Clay Carroll, who suffered a fracture of the fifth metacarpal on his right hand in an accident at home Saturday night, was placed on the 21-day disabled list Sunday.

SUN STROKED. Texas Rangers' center fielder Dave Moates loses high pop fly in the sun off the bat of White Sox' Bucky Dent in the second inning of the opening game of Sunday's doubleheader. The Sox went on to win the game, 7-6, in 12 innings.

TRAINING. Frank Shorter, winner of the gold medal for the marathon during the 1972 Olympics in Munich, will be competing this year for the United States in the XXI Olympic Games in Montreal, Canada. The Games will run from July 17 to Aug. 3. Shorter devotes himself to training, on both the flats (top) and over rocky terrain (bottom), studying law and spending time with his wife and dog.

TWO WHEEL ACTION featuring the International Auto Daredevils will be the headliner Friday evening at the Santa Fe Speedway, 91st and Wolf Road in Willow Springs. The High Skis calls for the driver to tilt a new Dodge on two wheels and maintain the balance while driving around the track. Action starts at 8 p.m.

After losing 9-4, Cubs break spell with 4-2 win

From Herald Wire Services

Two long streaks were broken at Shea Stadium Sunday when the Cubs defeated the New York Mets 4-2 in the second game of a doubleheader after losing the opener, 9-4.

The Mets extended their winning streak to 10 games with the 9-4 victory, pushing the down-trodden Cubs into their longest skid of the season at nine games.

Both streaks started last weekend at Wrigley Field when the Mets used Cub pitching to break out of a batting slump by scoring 30 runs in the three-game series.

Cubs' starting pitcher Ray Burris, with only three wins going into the second game, hit a sacrifice bunt which turned into a double error in the seventh inning, allowing two runs to score.

Mich Kelleher led off with a walk for the Cubs and then Mets' starting pitcher Mickey Lolich threw Burris' bunt past first base and into right field.

Dave Kingman picked up the ball and threw wildly to the plate. The ball went into the seats and both Kelleher and Burris scored to give the Cubs a 4-1 lead.

Burris, who had been taken out of the starting rotation by Cubs' manager Jim Marshall, is now 5-1 lifetime against the Mets. Two of his four wins this season against 10 losses, have also been at their expense.

Kelleher's two-run single in the fourth gave the Cubs a 2-1 lead. Dave Rosello and Jerry Morales scored on the single.

Lolich, who also has a 4-10 record, struck out nine Cubs while giving up six hits. Burris allowed nine hits and one walk to go along with eight strike outs.

The Mets had their biggest threat in the seventh when Mike Vail and Bruce Boisclair collected consecutive bunt singles with no outs. Mike Phillips then hit a potential double play ball to shortstop Rosello, who booted the ball, allowing one run to score.

Burris, however, went on to record his first complete game in 19 starts.

In the opener, the Mets established their longest winning streak since 1972 as Phillips, Bud Harrelson and relief pitcher Skip Lockwood each drove in a pair of runs.

Craig Swan started for the Mets and went six innings to gain his fifth victory. Bill Bonham was the loser, evening his record at 6-6. The Mets took advantage of only six hits.

A sacrifice fly by Phillips and a run-scoring single by Milner highlighted a three-run third and the Mets added two more runs in the fourth on a run-scoring single by Harrelson and Phillips infield out. Lockwood, who hit a two-run double in the eighth, picked up his ninth save.

Rick Monday accounted for two of the Cubs' runs with his 14th home run of the season in the fifth.

"No, don't do that. He's a genius," said Chaplin slowly. "And I know what that's like."

Genius or menace, Tilden's last years were Greek tragedy. Alone, unwashed, living in a cluttered Hollywood apartment, humiliated, shadowed by policemen, he was a pathetic cry from the laundered white-shirt giant who performed before the queen, partnered with Chaplin, David Selznick and Douglas Fairbanks, and thrilled the world.

His trophies were locked in a steamer truck, his pupils were municipal court mediocrities, and his picture was printed only on police blotters at the last. When he died, Tim Durant remembers that the only representative from the world of tennis was Pancho Segura, Joseph Cotten had to buy the sweater and suede coat they laid him in for the services. He had $6 in Automobile Club refund on him when he was found dead in bed. There were no wreaths from Wimbledon, Forest Hills, the USLTA.

Tennis wanted to forget him. But no one who ever saw him play ever could. He wrote the best book on tennis ever written. (When the Australian, John Newcombe, was asked how he learned the game, he replied in some surprise "Reading Bill Tilden's book — didn't everybody?")

Deford's book is an effort to revive his accomplishments, not his disgraces. It is a shame for a great champion to be remembered only for a pair of sordid instances of his dotage.

Sox split one-run contests with Texas

From Herald Wire Services

The White Sox split with the Texas Rangers Sunday, winning the opener 7-6 in 12 innings before losing the second game, 3-2.

Jorge Orta's 12th-inning single drove in Bucky Dent with the winning run in the opening game. Bill Stein opened the inning with a double and, one out later, Dent grounded to short, where Toby Harrah booted the ball for an error.

Stein was out at home when Chet Lemon hit into a fielder's choice, but Orta followed with his eighth game-winning hit of the season off loser Mike Bacsik.

Dave Hamilton, 4-4, pitched the last three innings to earn the win. The sox tied the score at six with two out in the bottom of the ninh when Kevin Bell's infield single just beyond second base scored Orta.

Jim Sundberg's double in the eighth gave the Rangers a 6-5 lead after they trailed 3-0 early in the game.

In the second game, the Sox scored two runs in the eighth after spotting the Rangers with a 3-0 lead.

Bill Fahey's two-run single in the eighth gave the Rangers a 3-0 lead. It came off Sox' starter Chris Knapp, making only his second major league start.

Knapp almost got out of the jam after loading the bases with no one out in the eighth. He got the next batter to hit a popout and then struck out Juan Beniquez before Fahey delivered his single.

He gave up 10 hits in the eight innings he worked. Texas starter Steve Hargan, with relief help from Hoerner, picked up his third win in five decisions. Hoener earned his sixth save.

Brian Downing led off the Chicago eighth with a double and scored on a single by Lemon.

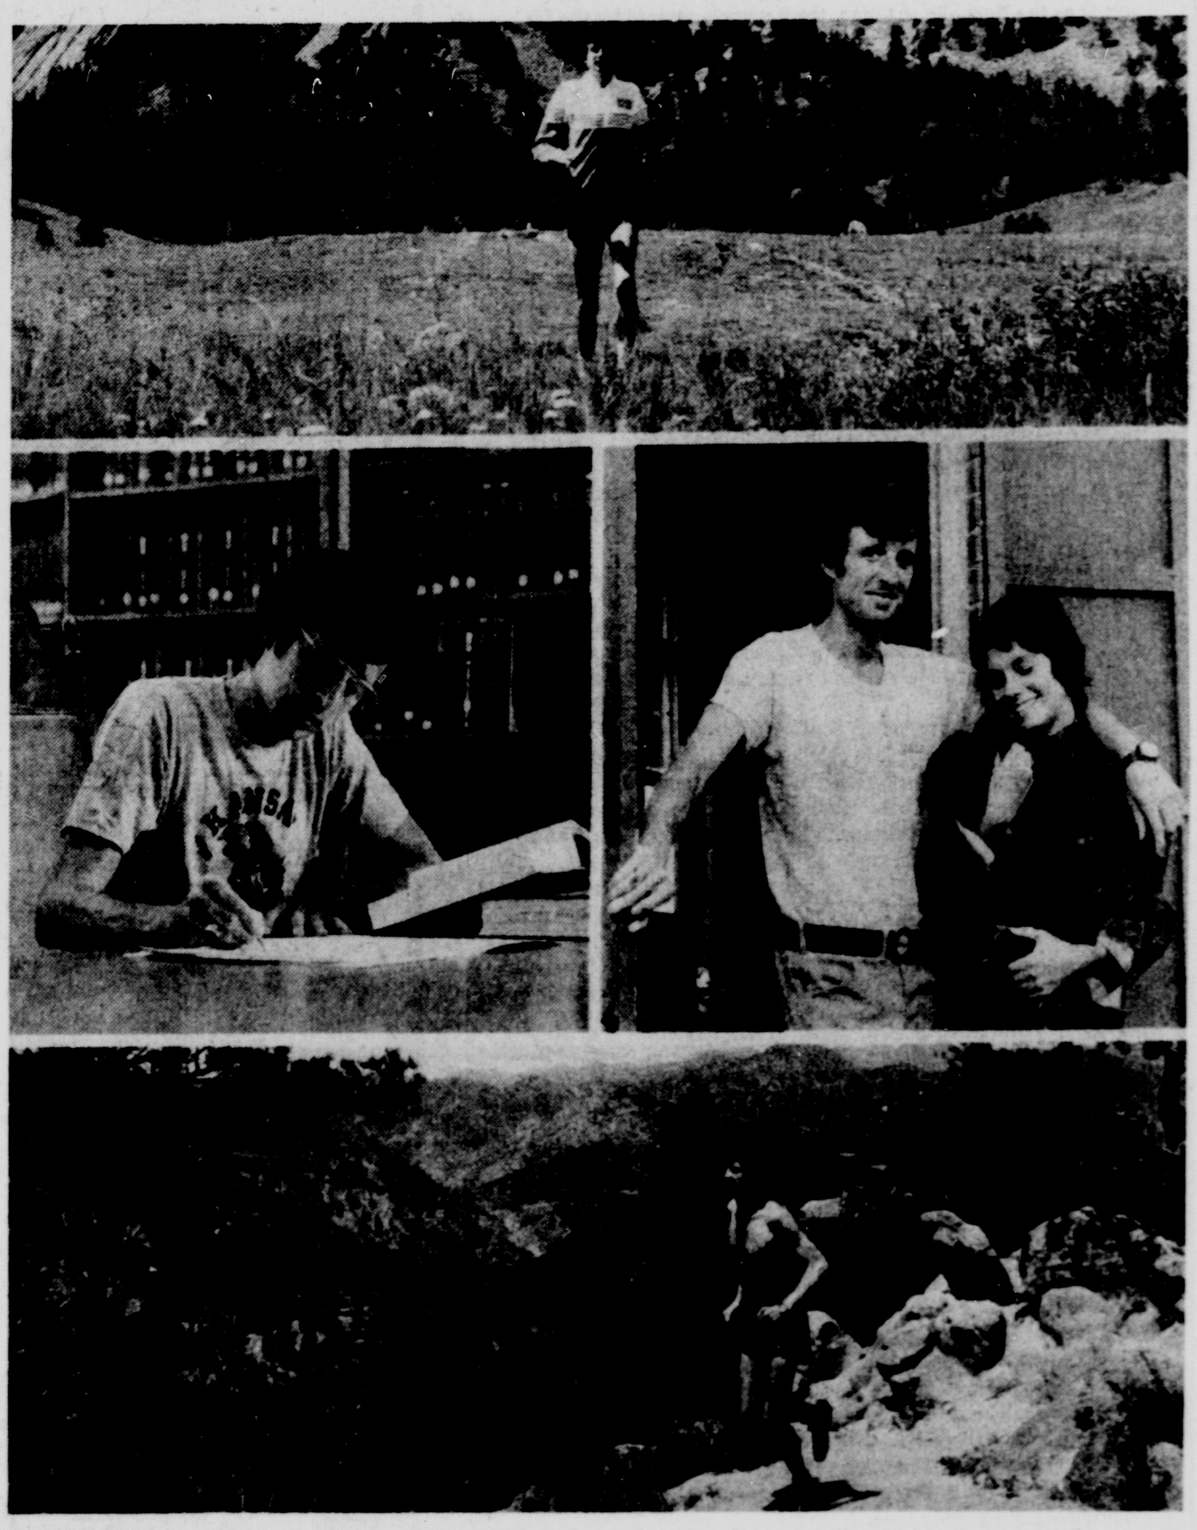

Lemon took second on a wild pitch by Hargan and scored on a single by Orta. Hoerner came in and got Pat Kelly to fly out and Dent to strike out to end the rally.

The Sox are now 12-12 in one-run contests.

Sox pitcher Clay Carroll, who suffered a fracture of the fifth metacarpal on his right hand in an accident at home Saturday night, was placed on the 21-day disabled list Sunday.

SUN STROKED. Texas Rangers' center fielder Dave Moates loses high pop fly in the sun off the bat of White Sox' Bucky Dent in the second inning of the opening game of Sunday's doubleheader. The Sox went on to win the game, 7-6, in 12 innings.

TRAINING. Frank Shorter, winner of the gold medal for the marathon during the 1972 Olympics in Munich, will be competing this year for the United States in the XXI Olympic Games in Montreal, Canada. The Games will run from July 17 to Aug. 3. Shorter devotes himself to training, on both the flats (top) and over rocky terrain (bottom), studying law and spending time with his wife and dog.

TWO WHEEL ACTION featuring the International Auto Daredevils will be the headliner Friday evening at the Santa Fe Speedway, 91st and Wolf Road in Willow Springs. The High Skis calls for the driver to tilt a new Dodge on two wheels and maintain the balance while driving around the track. Action starts at 8 p.m.

After losing 9-4, Cubs break spell with 4-2 win

From Herald Wire Services

Two long streaks were broken at Shea Stadium Sunday when the Cubs defeated the New York Mets 4-2 in the second game of a doubleheader after losing the opener, 9-4.

The Mets extended their winning streak to 10 games with the 9-4 victory, pushing the down-trodden Cubs into their longest skid of the season at nine games.

Both streaks started last weekend at Wrigley Field when the Mets used Cub pitching to break out of a batting slump by scoring 30 runs in the three-game series.

Cubs' starting pitcher Ray Burris, with only three wins going into the second game, hit a sacrifice bunt which turned into a double error in the seventh inning, allowing two runs to score.

Mich Kelleher led off with a walk for the Cubs and then Mets' starting pitcher Mickey Lolich threw Burris' bunt past first base and into right field.

Dave Kingman picked up the ball and threw wildly to the plate. The ball went into the seats and both Kelleher and Burris scored to give the Cubs a 4-1 lead.

Burris, who had been taken out of the starting rotation by Cubs' manager Jim Marshall, is now 5-1 lifetime against the Mets. Two of his four wins this season against 10 losses, have also been at their expense.

Kelleher's two-run single in the fourth gave the Cubs a 2-1 lead. Dave Rosello and Jerry Morales scored on the single.

Lolich, who also has a 4-10 record, struck out nine Cubs while giving up six hits. Burris allowed nine hits and one walk to go along with eight strike outs.

The Mets had their biggest threat in the seventh when Mike Vail and Bruce Boisclair collected consecutive bunt singles with no outs. Mike Phillips then hit a potential double play ball to shortstop Rosello, who booted the ball, allowing one run to score.

Burris, however, went on to record his first complete game in 19 starts.

In the opener, the Mets established their longest winning streak since 1972 as Phillips, Bud Harrelson and relief pitcher Skip Lockwood each drove in a pair of runs.

Craig Swan started for the Mets and went six innings to gain his fifth victory. Bill Bonham was the loser, evening his record at 6-6. The Mets took advantage of only six hits.

A sacrifice fly by Phillips and a run-scoring single by Milner highlighted a three-run third and the Mets added two more runs in the fourth on a run-scoring single by Harrelson and Phillips infield out. Lockwood, who hit a two-run double in the eighth, picked up his ninth save.

Rick Monday accounted for two of the Cubs' runs with his 14th home run of the season in the fifth.

Olympics official predicts scheduled start of games

MONTREAL — Monique Berlioux, executive director of the International Olympic Committee, Sunday predicted the 1976 Games would go on as scheduled beginning July 17 despite Canada's stand on Taiwan.

"But I can't make any comment on a possible settlement now," she said. "We have to await developments over the next few days and see what happens."

A series of meetings will be held by the 72-member international committee this week following the arrival of IOC president Lord Killinan, Monday afternoon. But officials said no meetings between the IOC and Canadian government officials had yet been scheduled.

Berlioux said she had nothing further to add to an IOC statement Friday that said reports the committee might withdraw its official sanction of the Games were incorrect.

"Two years ago when I was here in Montreal I predicted that facilities would be ready in time and that the Games would go on as scheduled," Berlioux said. "I am still confident they will."

A statement issued by the IOC in Lausanne, Switzerland, Thursday raised speculation the Summer Olympics might be threatened if an agreement on the China issue could not be reached with Canada.

The IOC accused the Canadian government of violating basic Olympic principles against discrimination by refusing Tawianese athletes entry to the country if they insisted on identifying them selves as the Republic of China, the name recognized by the IOC.

Hill takes Greater Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE — Dave Hill contributed some fireworks of his own to the Bicentennial celebration Sunday as he fired a three-under-par 69 to win the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open by three strokes over hard-charging Johnny Jacobs.

Hill and the other pros pummeled par on the rolling 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course and he finished 18-under to win the $26,000 first prize. It was his 13th victory since joining the tour in 1959.

Hill started the day 15-under-par with a four shot lead over Homero Blancas and five shots over Jacobs, Ed Sneed and Fuzzy Zoeller. Hill and Jacobs played in the same threesome and Jacobs made a run at Hill as he birdied the last three holes.

But Hill's advantage was too great and he cast out any doubt of whom the winner would be when he also birdied the final hole.

Hunt wins 62nd French Grand Prix

LE CASTELLET, France — James Hunt of Britain picked up his first official Formula One win this season Sunday, driving his red and white Marlboro McLaren to victory in the 62nd French Grand Prix.

He covered 195.99 miles on southern France's twisting mountain top Paul Ricard race track in one hour, 40 minutes, 58.60 seconds.

The dark green, six-wheeled Tyrrell of Frenchman Patrick Depailler was second and in a late shuffle John Watson of Ireland brought his Penske in third with Brazilian Carlos Pace just behind him in a bright red Brabham.

The race wasn't going in Hunt's favor at its start. Austrian world driving champion Niki Lauda neutralized Hunt's pole position into the lead in his sleek red Ferrari.

For a short time Lauda continued to push distance between himself and the rest of the pack on this pine-covered hilltop when his engine blew up.

Yarborough has some good luck

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Gale Yarborough, a 37-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran, broke his streak of "bad luck" Sunday to win the $170,000 firecracker 400 stock car race going away before a holiday crowd of 70,000.

Yarborough, who started in the second grid, traded the lead several times during the first part of the race with Bobby Allison, a Chevrolet driver from Hueytown, Ala. But Yarborough's Chevrolet finally broke away from Allison and four-time Firecracker winner David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., on the 146th lap. His average speed was 160.966 miles per hour.

Yarborough beat the second place Pearson by eight seconds. Allison finished third and A. J. Foyt of Houston was fourth. Coo Coo Marlin of Columbia, Tenn., was fifth.

"I'm as hot as a firecracker and mighty tired," said the blond Yarborough in victory lane.

"My crew sure did a lot to keep me in it," he added. "Everything worked all the way. I knew that if I could get Pearson and Allison together, I might have been able to get away and that's what happened."

Bjorn Borg puts legend to rest

WIMBLEDON — Bjorn Borg's defeat of an unusually subdued Ilie Nastase 6-4, 6-2, 9-7 Saturday gave the Swede the Wimbledon title at the age of 20 and laid to rest a legend that said he could not play on grass.

Borg's victory capped 12 days of sweltering tennis on the All-England courts that by the end had been turned to a shrivelled brown by the continual 90 degree heat and secured him a permanent place among the greatest names in tennis.

At the same age Rod Laver had yet to win a major title and even the prodigious Ken Rosewall had only two significant wins to his name. Borg, as well as leading Sweden to victory in the Davis Cup last year, has won the French Open title twice, the Italian and U.S. professional crowns and is the reigning WCT champion.

But of all those victories, the Wimbledon crown meant the most, said Borg.

"it has always been my ambition. Now I have won I am so happy I don't know what to say.

"They said I could not play well on grass but I have learned to be more aggressive — that's what you need to win Wimbledon," the Swede said Sunday.

And in other sports news . . .

Dr. Leroy Walker, head coach for the U.S. Olympic track and field team, says he thinks the team will be in 14 final events at the Montreal Games, but he is being cautious about his optimism . . . Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, said the Olympic Games have been damaged by Montreal's spiraling costs and the "political interference" of the Canadian government . . .

Randy Jones won his 15th game of the season as the San Diego Padres defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-2 . . . Stu Inman, vice president and director of player personnel for the Portland Trail Blazers, says it wouldn't surprise him if half the National Basketball Association teams pass in the first round of the dispersal draft . . .

Olympics official predicts scheduled start of games

MONTREAL — Monique Berlioux, executive director of the International Olympic Committee, Sunday predicted the 1976 Games would go on as scheduled beginning July 17 despite Canada's stand on Taiwan.

"But I can't make any comment on a possible settlement now," she said. "We have to await developments over the next few days and see what happens."

A series of meetings will be held by the 72-member international committee this week following the arrival of IOC president Lord Killinan, Monday afternoon. But officials said no meetings between the IOC and Canadian government officials had yet been scheduled.

Berlioux said she had nothing further to add to an IOC statement Friday that said reports the committee might withdraw its official sanction of the Games were incorrect.

"Two years ago when I was here in Montreal I predicted that facilities would be ready in time and that the Games would go on as scheduled," Berlioux said. "I am still confident they will."

A statement issued by the IOC in Lausanne, Switzerland, Thursday raised speculation the Summer Olympics might be threatened if an agreement on the China issue could not be reached with Canada.

The IOC accused the Canadian government of violating basic Olympic principles against discrimination by refusing Tawianese athletes entry to the country if they insisted on identifying themselves as the Republic of China, the name recognized by the IOC.

Hill takes Greater Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE — Dave Hill contributed some fireworks of his own to the Bicentennial celebration Sunday as he fired a three-under-par 69 to win the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open by three strokes over hard-charging Johnny Jacobs.

Hill and the other pros pummeled par on the rolling 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course and he finished 18-under to win the $26,000 first prize. It was his 13th victory since joining the tour in 1959.

Hill started the day 15-under-par with a four shot lead over Homero Blancas and five shots over Jacobs, Ed Sneed and Fuzzy Zoeller. Hill and Jacobs played in the same threesome and Jacobs made a run at Hill as he birdied the last three holes.

But Hill's advantage was too great and he cast out any doubt of whom the winner would be when he also birdied the final hole.

Hunt wins 62nd French Grand Prix

LE CASTELLET, France — James Hunt of Britain picked up his first official Formula One win this season Sunday, driving his red and white Marlboro McLaren to victory in the 62nd French Grand Prix.

He covered 195.99 miles on southern France's twisting mountain top Paul Ricard race track in one hour, 40 minutes, 58.60 seconds.

The dark green, six-wheeled Tyrrell of Frenchman Patrick Depailler was second and in a late shuffle John Watson of Ireland brought his Penske in third with Brazilian Carlos Pace just behind him in a bright red Brabham.

The race wasn't going in Hunt's favor at its start. Austrian world driving champion Niki Lauda neutralized Hunt's pole position into the lead in his sleek red Ferrari.

For a short time Lauda continued to push distance between himself and the rest of the pack on this pine-covered hilltop when his engine blew up.

Yarborough has some good luck

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Gale Yarborough, a 37-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran, broke his streak of "bad luck" Sunday to win the $170,000 firecracker 400 stock car race going away before a holiday crowd of 70,000.

Yarborough, who started in the second grid, traded the lead several times during the first part of the race with Bobby Allison, a Chevrolet driver from Hueytown, Ala. But Yarborough's Chevrolet finally broke away from Allison and four-time Firecracker winner David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., on the 146th lap. His average speed was 160.966 miles per hour.

Yarborough beat the second place Pearson by eight seconds. Allison finished third and A. J. Foyt of Houston was fourth. Coo Coo Marlin of Columbia, Tenn., was fifth.

"I'm as hot as a firecracker and mighty tired," said the blond Yarborough in victory lane.

"My crew sure did a lot to keep me in it," he added. "Everything worked all the way. I knew that if I could get Pearson and Allison together, I might have been able to get away and that's what happened."

Bjorn Borg puts legend to rest

WIMBLEDON — Bjorn Borg's defeat of an unusually subdued Ilie Nastase 6-4, 6-2, 9-7 Saturday gave the Swede the Wimbledon title at the age of 20 and laid to rest a legend that said he could not play on grass.

Borg's victory capped 12 days of sweltering tennis on the All-England courts that by the end had been turned to a shrivelled brown by the continual 90 degree heat and secured him a permanent place among the greatest names in tennis.

At the same age Rod Laver had yet to win a major title and even the prodigious Ken Rosewall had only two significant wins to his name. Borg, as well as leading Sweden to victory in the Davis Cup last year, has won the French Open title twice, the Italian and U.S. professional crowns and is the reigning WCT champion.

But of all those victories, the Wimbledon crown meant the most, said Borg.

"it has always been my ambition. Now I have won I am so happy I don't know what to say.

"They said I could not play well on grass but I have learned to be more aggressive — that's what you need to win Wimbledon," the Swede said Sunday.

And in other sports news . . .

Dr. Leroy Walker, head coach for the U.S. Olympic track and field team, says he thinks the team will be in 14 final events at the Montreal Games, but he is being cautious about his optimism . . . Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, said the Olympic Games have been damaged by Montreal's spiraling costs and the "political interference" of the Canadian government . . .

Randy Jones won his 15th game of the season as the San Diego Padres defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-2 . . . Stu Inman, vice president and director of player personnel for the Portland Trail Blazers, says it wouldn't surprise him if half the National Basketball Association teams pass in the first round of the dispersal draft . . .

The feud

Rosenbloom rips 'vindictive' Rozelle

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES — An internecine battle for control of the National Football League has flared between a small clique of unhappy owners and the commissioner, Pete Rozelle.

It has manifested itself in an all-out assault by one man, Carroll Rosenbloom of the Los Angeles Rams, on the sanctity of Pete's office.

Rosenbloom has had the temerity to ask questions:

What are the terms of Rozelle's contract with the NFL? Only four of 28 owners really knew — those on the Finance Committee who arranged the contract — until Rosenbloom flew to New York and threatened suit.

Why were the Rams shafted on the 1976 playing schedule? Of the four nondivision home games, three are with such clunkers as the Chicago Bears, New York Giants and Seattle Seahawks.

Why has the league sought to get a refund on rent charged by the Rams for the 1975 playoff games against the St. Louis Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys in the Los Angeles Coliseum? The Rams actually had the stadium rent free at the time because of a complex rental agreement, and the NFL therefore claims it was euchered. "Why," rebuts Rosembloom, "didn't they object when we charged them for a playoff game in '74?"

The inference by the Rams' owner is that the commissioner's actions are reprisals for Carroll's prying into the operation of league headquarters — and because of the Cullen Bryant case. Bryant, running back, was awarded by Rozelle to the Detroit Lions after the Rams had signed wide receiver Ron Jessie, a former Lion who had played out his contract. The Rams howled, and so did Bryant — who got a court injunction and remained with Los Angeles.

That led to the break between Rosembloom and Rozelle, though they've feuded off and on since 1963, when the NFL investigated Rosenbloom for alleged gambling activities.

"I can't believe," says Rosenbloom, "how vindictive he is." At a league general session in San Diego this spring, he called the commissioner "a liar."

Of much greater consequence, however, than a purported feud between the two men is the spreading unrest in the league over recent setbacks in pro football.

"We've failed with the players. He (Rozelle) is a failure, and some of the other owners are beginning to realize it."

Such direct criticism of Rozelle in the NFL is almost apocalyptic. For 16 years, since Rosenbloom himself spurred Rozelle into the commissioner's office as a compromise candidate, Pete has been unassailable as the strong man of American sports. During his tenure, pro football became the pervasive national sport, with millions accruing from lush television contracts and the NFL growing from 12 to 28 teams worth an average of $18 million each.

"What got the guys in the NFL upset," asserts Rosenbloom, "was that I started asking questions and couldn't get answers."

The questions were prompted by serious problems now facing the NFL as a result of:

A law passed by Congress, forcing teams to lift TV blackouts of games sold out 72 hours in advance. Owners claim it has affected their season ticket sales.

The loss of the John Mackey lawsuit in Minnesota, which outlawed the Rozelle Rule (compensation for a player who has played out his option) and in effect makes it possible for all players to become free agents.

The failure of the owner's Management Council in its negotiations with the NFL Players Association. There was a costly strike in 1974, and there has been no collective bargaining agreement since then. Rosenbloom blames the failure on Rozelle's appointment of the New York Giants' Wellington Mara to head that committee — "it's cost us $5 million."

Rozelle, disclaiming any vindictiveness on his part, says, "You don't like people to feel as Carroll has about me. It's unpleasant. Carroll wants things done his way. And he's one of 28."

Rozelle's tenure as commissioner isn't threatened because it would take 21 votes to unseat him, and there is no specific inclination to dump him. He has more than seven years remaining on a contract which now pays him about $300,000 a year.

Even the Rams' owner admits, "I'm not interested in getting rid of Pete Rozelle. I just want our league run the way it ought to be run. I don't blame all our failures on him. It's the owners who let him get away with it."

At an emergency meeting this past January, a planning committee was selected (by Rozelle) to "assist and advise the commissioner." It is composed of owners who are both critics and advocates of Rozelle — Al Davis of Oakland, Tex Schramm of Dallas, Art Modell of Cleveland, Lamar Hunt of Kansas City and Paul Brown of Cleveland. They meet with Pete in special sessions and communicate regularly via conference calls.

It is an indication that although Pete Rozelle as a pro football czar still reigns, he is not supreme — at least among some of the owners who pay his salary.

Leading stock drivers enter 'All-Star 200'

Many of the Midwest's leading late model stock car drivers have already entered tonight's rich 'All-Star 200' racing program at the Waukegan Speedway at 7 p.m.

Leading the invasion of Wisconsin drivers will be three of the nation's top short track drivers, none of which have ever seen the Waukegan oval.

Mike Miller of Wisconsin Rapids will drive a Mustang in Monday's events. Miller is a former National Short Track Champion and currently ranks high in the point standings at several Wisconsin tracks.

Dick Trickle hopes to have his Ford Grenada repaired for Monday's spectacular, following serious crash and roll-over near Madison, Wis. The 'White Knight' will call upon his back-up Mustang if repairs can't be completed in time. Trickle has won over 500 feature races in his career.

Tom Reffner, last season's winningest driver with 67 feature race victories, will race his popular American Motors Javelin in the 100-lap feature tonight at Waukegan trying to upset the Camaro domination of the winner's circle at Waukegan for the past few yers.

But the favorite going into the Monday races has to be Larry Schuler in the George Appleton Camaro. Schuler has started 15 features in the Appleton car, winning 14 of them. He also has three more victories in a back-up car. Schuler resides in Lockport (Ill.).

Louis supports Foreman's future

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Foreman wasn't the only person impressed by the manner in which he punched Joe Frazier into retirement June 15.

Joe Louis, considered by many the greatest heavyweight champion of all time, and Eddie Futch, one of contemporary boxing's finest trainers, have jumped aboard the George Foreman bandwagon.

"Right now I'd have to say Ken Norton could beat Muhammad Ali, and George Foreman could beat them both," says Louis.

The 27-year-old Foreman, his shattered ego completely rehabilitated by his fifth-round technical knockout of Frazier, confidently agrees.

"The next time I fight Ali, it will be like a country boy pickin' peas," predicts Foreman. "And everybody knows what I did to Norton."

What Foreman did to Norton was knock him out in the second round of a title fight i Caracas, Venezuela in March of 1974.

"I can't stay idle, though," he warns. "I can't remain inactive. I don't want to get out of shape."

To accomplish that objective, Foreman says he'll fight within the next six months, hopefully within the next three, most likely against Jimmy Young, who lost a controversial decision to Ali in an April title fight.

At present, Foreman is bubbling with confidence, having proved to himself that he is a complete boxer, not an undisciplined slugger banging away without a purpose, trying to take a man out with one punch.

"That fight (with Frazier) was a good boxing performance to me," he proudly says. "It was clear to me that I was not only fighting Joe Frazier but his corner and strategies as well. It was a tough fight to me mentally.

"I went to work really a journeyman type fighter. After the third round I saw there wasn't gonna be an easy knockout so I went to work, hit to the body. I thought it might go the distance so I laid down the groundwork."

Futch, who was in Frazier's corner that night and rushed along the edge of the ring apron to tell referee Harold Valan to stop the fight, totally agrees with Foreman's self-analysis.

"George Foreman has improved much over his last two fights," says Futch. "He fought a smart fight. He used his left to set up his man. He mixed his attack up smartly. He threw combinations behind the jab, then went to the body. I saw him use these things against lesser fighters but I never saw him do it against the top ones."

Trainer Gil Clancy, hired by Foreman after he fired his entire entourage of advisors following his defeat at the hands of Ali in Zaire in October 1974, is the man most responsible for that dramatic improvement.

"It was the best cornerwork I've had in boxing," Foreman said. "There was mutual respect. I asked a question. They answered me. I listened. They advised me. I did what they said. I was very pleased with the precision work in the corner."

At peace with himself and with his handlers, George Foreman thinks he's ready to realize his full potential and regain the heavyweight championship. Joe Louis and Eddie Futch couldn't agree more.

Anyone for horseshoes?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Created by the Romans perhaps out of boredom, nurtured by the English, and finding new roots in the United States, the game of horsehoes has progressed from folklore to international tournament status.

As the Roman legions spread their iron mantle over Palestine, Egypt, Spain, France and England, the militia, like countless thousands of G.I.'s that manned lonely outposts in later years, tried to make camp life more interesting.

The shod hooves of the Roman cavalry provided the material for passing the idle hours.

Some say the Greeks predated the Romans in a similar version of the game. As legend has it, one of the events in the early Olympic Games was the throwing of a stone discus. The object was a heavy rock with a strap inserted through a hole in the center of the missle. Using the thong as leverage, the contestent heaved the stone at a stake.

Roman soldiers later collected discarded horseshoes, drove stakes into the ground and a new game was born.

At a later date, the English repulsed the Romans, got rid of their architecture, their soldiers and their cavalry. They kept the horseshoes.

Today's game transcends international geographical and age barriers. The oldsters have accumulated the skill and the youngsters have the energy of thoroughbred horses.

An estimated 1,000 worshipers of the 2½-pound projectiles will gather at Bristol Township, Pa., July 30 - Aug. 8 for the World Horseshoe Pitching Championships. They are proven marksmen in the junior, intermediate and senior classes.

Talk about Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak, or Danny Villaneuva booting 56 consecutive extra points, Ted Allen holds the record of 72 straight ringers around the stake that stands 40 feet away from the throwing lane.

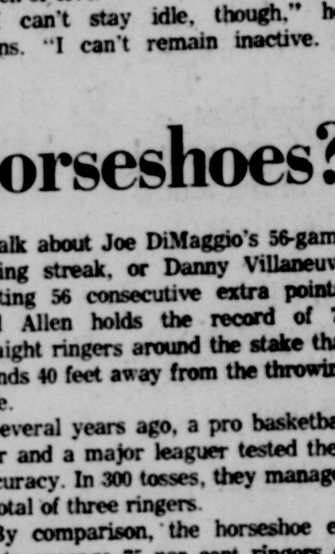

Several years ago, a pro basketball star and a major leaguer tested their accuracy. In 300 tosses, they managed a total of three ringers.

By comparison, the horseshoe experts average 75 per cent ringers on their throws.

The feud

Rosenbloom rips 'vindictive' Rozelle

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES — An internecine battle for control of the National Football League has flared between a small clique of unhappy owners and the commissioner, Pete Rozelle.

It has manifested itself in an all-out assault by one man, Carroll Rosenbloom of the Los Angeles Rams, on the sanctity of Pete's office.

Rosenbloom has had the temerity to ask questions:

What are the terms of Rozelle's contract with the NFL? Only four of 28 owners really knew — those on the Finance Committee who arranged the contract — until Rosembloom flew to New York and threatened suit.

Why were the Rams shafted on the 1976 playing schedule? Of the four nondivision home games, three are with such clunkers as the Chicago Bears, New York Giants and Seattle Seahawks.

Why has the league sought to get a refund on rent charged by the Rams for the 1975 playoff games against the St. Louis Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys in the Los Angeles Coliseum? The Rams actually had the stadium rent free at the time because of a complex rental agreement, and the NFL therefore claims it was euchered. "Why," rebuts Rosembloom, "didn't they object when we charged them for a playoff game in '74?"

The inference by the Rams' owner is that the commissioner's actions are reprisals for Carroll's prying into the operation of league headquarters — and because of the Cullen Bryant case. Bryant, running back, was awarded by Rozelle to the Detroit Lions after the Rams had signed wide receiver Ron Jessie, a former Lion who had played out his contract. The Rams howled, and so did Bryant — who got a court injunction and remained with Los Angeles.

That led to the break between Rosembloom and Rozelle, though they've feuded off and on since 1963, when the NFL investigated Rosenbloom for alleged gambling activities.

"I can't believe," says Rosenbloom, "how vindictive he is." At a league general session in San Diego this spring, he called the commissioner "a liar."

Of much greater consequence, however, than a purported feud between the two men is the spreading unrest in the league over recent setbacks in pro football.

"We've failed with the players. He (Rozelle) is a failure, and some of the other owners are beginning to realize it."

Such direct criticism of Rozelle in the NFL is almost apocalyptic. For 16 years, since Rosenbloom himself spurred Rozelle into the commissioner's office as a compromise candidate, Pete has been unassailable as the strong man of American sports. During his tenure, pro football became the pervasive national sport, with millions accruing from lush television contracts and the NFL growing from 12 to 28 teams worth an average of $18 million each.

"What got the guys in the NFL upset," asserts Rosenbloom, "was that I started asking questions and couldn't get answers."

The questions were prompted by serious problems now facing the NFL as a result of:

A law passed by Congress, forcing teams to lift TV blackouts of games sold out 72 hours in advance. Owners claim it has affected their season ticket sales.

The loss of the John Mackey lawsuit in Minnesota, which outlawed the Rozelle Rule (compensation for a player who has played out his option) and in effect makes it possible for all players to become free agents.

The failure of the owner's Management Council in its negotiations with the NFL Players Association. There was a costly strike in 1974, and there has been no collective bargaining agreement since then. Rosenbloom blames the failure on Rozelle's appointment of the New York Giants' Wellington Mara to head that committee — "it's cost us $5 million."

Rozelle, disclaiming any vindictiveness on his part, says, "You don't like people to feel as Carroll has about me. It's unpleasant. Carroll wants things done his way. And he's one of 28."

Rozelle's tenure as commissioner isn't threatened because it would take 21 votes to unseat him, and there is no specific inclination to dump him. He has more than seven years remaining on a contract which now pays him about $300,000 a year.

Even the Rams' owner admits, "I'm not interested in getting rid of Pete Rozelle. I just want our league run the way it ought to be run. I don't blame all our failures on him. It's the owners who let him get away with it."

At an emergency meeting this past January, a planning committee was selected (by Rozelle) to "assist and advise the commissioner." It is composed of owners who are both critics and advocates of Rozelle — Al Davis of Oakland, Tex Schramm of Dallas, Art Modell of Cleveland, Lamar Hunt of Kansas City and Paul Brown of Cleveland. They meet with Pete in special sessions and communicate regularly via conference calls.

It is an indication that although Pete Rozelle as a pro football czar still reigns, he is not supreme — at least among some of the owners who pay his salary.

Leading stock drivers enter 'All-Star 200'

Many of the Midwest's leading late model stock car drivers have already entered tonight's rich 'All-Star 200' racing program at the Waukegan Speedway at 7 p.m.

Leading the invasion of Wisconsin drivers will be three of the nation's top short track drivers, none of which have ever seen the Waukegan oval.

Mike Miller of Wisconsin Rapids will drive a Mustang in Monday's events. Miller is a former National Short Track Champion and currently ranks high in the point standings at several Wisconsin tracks.

Dick Trickle hopes to have his Ford Grenada repaired for Monday's spectacular, following serious crash and roll-over near Madison, Wis. The 'White Knight' will call upon his back-up Mustang if repairs can't be completed in time. Trickle has won over 500 feature races in his career.

Tom Reffner, last season's winningest driver with 67 feature race victories, will race his popular American Motors Javelin in the 100-lap feature tonight at Waukegan trying to upset the Camaro domination of the winner's circle at Waukegan for the past few yers.

But the favorite going into the Monday races has to be Larry Schuler in the George Appleton Camaro. Schuler has started 15 features in the Appleton car, winning 14 of them. He also has three more victories in a back-up car. Schuler resides in Lockport (Ill.).

Louis supports Foreman's future

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Foreman wasn't the only person impressed by the manner in which he punched Joe Frazier into retirement June 15.

Joe Louis, considered by many the greatest heavyweight champion of all time, and Eddie Futch, one of contemporary boxing's finest trainers, have jumped aboard the George Foreman bandwagon.

"Right now I'd have to say Ken Norton could beat Muhammad Ali, and George Foreman could beat them both," says Louis.

The 27-year-old Foreman, his shattered ego completely rehabilitated by his fifth-round technical knockout of Frazier, confidently agrees.

"The next time I fight Ali, it will be like a country boy pickin' peas," predicts Foreman. "And everybody knows what I did to Norton."

What Foreman did to Norton was knock him out in the second round of a title fight i Caracas, Venezuela in March of 1974.

"I can't stay idle, though," he warns. "I can't remain inactive. I don't want to get out of shape."

To accomplish that objective, Foreman says he'll fight within the next six months, hopefully within the next three, most likely against Jimmy Young, who lost a controversial decision to Ali in an April title fight.

At present, Foreman is bubbling with confidence, having proved to himself that he is a complete boxer, not an undisciplined slugger banging away without a purpose, trying to take a man out with one punch.

"That fight (with Frazier) was a good boxing performance to me," he proudly says. "It was clear to me that I was not only fighting Joe Frazier but his corner and strategies as well. It was a tough fight to me mentally.

"I went to work really a journeyman type fighter. After the third round I saw there wasn't gonna be an easy knockout so I went to work, hit to the body. I thought it might go the distance so I laid down the groundwork."

Futch, who was in Frazier's corner that night and rushed along the edge of the ring apron to tell referee Harold Valan to stop the fight, totally agrees with Foreman's self-analysis.

"George Foreman has improved much over his last two fights," says Futch. "He fought a smart fight. He used his left to set up his man. He mixed his attack up smartly. He threw combinations behind the jab, then went to the body. I saw him use these things against lesser fighters but I never saw him do it against the top ones."

Trainer Gil Clancy, hired by Foreman after he fired his entire entourage of advisors following his defeat at the hands of Ali in Zaire in October 1974, is the man most responsible for that dramatic improvement.

"It was the best cornerwork I've had in boxing," Foreman said. "There was mutual respect. I asked a question. They answered me. I listened. They advised me. I did what they said. I was very pleased with the precision work in the corner."

At peace with himself and with his handlers, George Foreman thinks he's ready to realize his full potential and regain the heavyweight championship. Joe Louis and Eddie Futch couldn't agree more.

Anyone for horseshoes?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Created by the Romans perhaps out of boredom, nurtured by the English, and finding new roots in the United States, the game of horsehoes has progressed from folklore to international tournament status.

As the Roman legions spread their iron mantle over Palestine, Egypt, Spain, France and England, the militia, like countless thousands of G.I.'s that manned lonely outposts in later years, tried to make camp life more interesting.

The shod hooves of the Roman cavalry provided the material for passing the idle hours.

Some say the Greeks predated the Romans in a similar version of the game. As legend has it, one of the events in the early Olympic Games was the throwing of a stone discus. The object was a heavy rock with a strap inserted through a hole in the center of the missle. Using the thong as leverage, the contestent heaved the stone at a stake.

Roman soldiers later collected discarded horseshoes, drove stakes into the ground and a new game was born.

At a later date, the English repulsed the Romans, got rid of their architecture, their soldiers and their cavalry. They kept the horseshoes.

Today's game transcends international geographical and age barriers. The oldsters have accumulated the skill and the youngsters have the energy of thoroughbred horses.

An estimated 1,000 worshipers of the 2½-pound projectiles will gather at Bristol Township, Pa., July 30 - Aug. 8 for the World Horseshoe Pitching Championships. They are proven marksmen in the junior, intermediate and senior classes.

Talk about Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak, or Danny Villaneuva booting 56 consecutive extra points, Ted Allen holds the record of 72 straight ringers around the stake that stands 40 feet away from the throwing lane.

Several years ago, a pro basketball star and a major leaguer tested their accuracy. In 300 tosses, they managed a total of three ringers.

By comparison, the horseshoe experts average 75 per cent ringers on their throws.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE ISN'T THE ONLY PAPER THESE MEN EVER SIGNED.

For the past month, First Federal has been exhibiting a rare collection of letters, papers and documents from the Signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Some concern official matters. Others are personal.

All are authentic and original documents from the pens of John Hancock, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, and the other 53 signers.

This priceless collection will give you a much closer, more personal understanding of what life in America was like 200 years ago.

There's a paper signed by John Hancock as president of the Continental Congress, for example, appointing a new quartermaster for the 4th Battalion of Pennsylvania troops.

A letter from Abraham Clark reporting that the smallpox epidemic in the prisons is coming along "very nicely."

There's even a petition to the city to get a nearby alley fixed, signed by an irate Benjamin Rush. (Some things haven't changed a bit in 200 years.)

If you haven't already seen it, the exhibit will be on display at three First Federal branches until the end of July.

For each visitor, we'll have a free Bicentennial folder—with the story of the Declaration of Independence, biographies and portraits of each signer, plus a reproduction of the original document.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Here are the dates and places where our Bicentennial Exhibit will be displayed during business hours.
